The usual disclaimers apply. This code works for me. Don't blame me if it makes your machine or network go down in flames. That taken into consideration, use this code as you wish. If you make usefull modifications I'd appreciate hearing about it.

Description:	Direct Frame Buffer; Graphics abstraction library for the Linux Framebuffer Device. DirectFB is a graphics library which was designed with embedded systems in mind. It offers maximum hardware accelerated performance at a minimum of resource usage and overhead. It is a software library for the GNU/Linux operating system that provides "hardware graphics acceleration, input device handling and abstraction, integrated windowing system with support for translucent windows and multiple display layers on top of the Linux Framebuffer Device." The library allows developers an alternative to a full X Window System server used in Unix-like operating systems. DirectFB allows applications to talk directly to video hardware through a direct API, speeding up and simplifying graphic operations.
	DirectFB is a thin library that provides hardware graphics acceleration, input device handling and abstraction, integrated windowing system with support for translucent windows and multiple display layers on top of the Linux Framebuffer Device. It is a complete hardware abstraction layer with software fallbacks for every graphics operation that is not supported by the underlying hardware. DirectFB adds graphical power to embedded systems and sets a new standard for graphics under Linux.

In a mail from Paul on 23.10.2006 05:47: You may put an LGPL permission statement on that code, replacing the GPL permission statement. From a technical point of view, I'm not sure that the code in ppcasm_memcpy_cachable.S is the best thing to use in userspace, though; for one thing, it has a cache line size assumption encoded into it. Why don't you just use the glibc memcpy? It's pretty well optimized these days, AFAIK. Paul.

Description:	Distributed Replicated Block Device. DRBD is a distributed replicated block device. It mirrors a block device over the network to another machine. Think of it as networked raid 1. It is a building block for setting up clusters. DRBD is a distributed storage system for the Linux platform. It consists of a kernel module, several userspace management applications and some shell scripts and is normally used on high availability (HA) clusters. DRBD bears similarities to RAID 1, except that it runs over a network.

To the best of the authors knowledge the only patent related issues within the library are the RC5 and RC6 symmetric block ciphers. They can be removed from a build by simply commenting out the two appropriate lines in /textit{tomcrypt/_custom.h}. The rest of the ciphers and hashes are patent

Description:	DSP/BIOS LINK is foundation software for the inter-processor communication across the GPP-DSP boundary. It provides a generic API that abstracts the characteristics of the physical link connecting GPP and DSP from the applications. It eliminates the need for customers to develop such link from scratch and allows them to focus more on application development.

This package, the EXT2 filesystem utilities, are made available under the GNU Public License version 2, with the exception of the lib/ext2fs and lib/e2p libraries, which are made available under the GNU Library General Public License Version 2, the lib/uuid library which is made available under a BSD-style license and the lib/et and lib/ss libraries which are made available under an MIT-style license. Please see lib/uuid/COPYING for more details for the license for the files comprising the libuuid library, and the source file headers of the libet and libss libraries for more information.

The most recent officially distributed version can be found at <http://e2fsprogs.sourceforge.net>. If you need to make a distribution, that's the one you should use. If there is some reason why you'd like a more recent version that is still in ALPHA testing (i.e., either using the "WIP" test distributions or one from the hg or git repository from the development branch, please contact me (tytso@mit.edu) before you ship. The release schedules for this package are flexible, if you give me enough lead time. - Theodore Ts'o 23-June-2007

NO WARRANTY - BECAUSE THIS PROGRAM IS LICENSED FREE OF CHARGE, WE PROVIDE ABSOLUTELY NO WARRANTY, TO THE EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE STATE LAW. EXCEPT WHEN OTHERWISE STATED IN WRITING, FREE SOFTWARE FOUNDATION, INC, RICHARD M. STALLMAN AND/OR OTHER PARTIES PROVIDE THIS PROGRAM "AS IS" WITHOUT WARRANTY OF ANY KIND, EITHER EXPRESSED OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, THE IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY AND FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE. THE ENTIRE RISK AS TO THE QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE OF THE PROGRAM IS WITH YOU. SHOULD THE PROGRAM PROVE DEFECTIVE, YOU ASSUME THE COST OF ALL NECESSARY SERVICING, REPAIR OR CORRECTION.

IN NO EVENT UNLESS REQUIRED BY APPLICABLE LAW WILL RICHARD M. STALLMAN, THE FREE SOFTWARE FOUNDATION, INC., AND/OR ANY OTHER PARTY WHO MAY MODIFY AND REDISTRIBUTE THIS PROGRAM AS PERMITTED BELOW, BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR DAMAGES, INCLUDING ANY LOST PROFITS, LOST MONIES, OR OTHER SPECIAL, INCIDENTAL OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES ARISING OUT OF THE USE OR INABILITY TO USE (INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO LOSS OF DATA OR DATA BEING RENDERED INACCURATE OR LOSSES SUSTAINED BY THIRD PARTIES OR A FAILURE OF THE PROGRAM TO OPERATE WITH ANY OTHER PROGRAMS) THIS PROGRAM, EVEN IF YOU HAVE BEEN ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGES, OR FOR ANY CLAIM BY ANY OTHER PARTY.

GENERAL PUBLIC LICENSE TO COPY

1. You may copy and distribute verbatim copies of this source file as you receive it, in any medium, provided that you conspicuously and appropriately publish on each copy a valid copyright notice "Copyright (C) 1986 Richard M. Stallman"; and include following the copyright notice a verbatim copy of the above disclaimer of warranty and of this License.
2. You may modify your copy or copies of this source file or any portion of it, and copy and distribute such modifications under the terms of Paragraph 1 above, provided that you also do the following:

- a) cause the modified files to carry prominent notices stating that you changed the files and the date of any change; and
- b) cause the whole of any work that you distribute or publish, that in whole or in part contains or is a derivative of this program or any part thereof, to be licensed at no charge to all third parties on terms identical to those contained in this License Agreement (except that you may choose to grant more extensive warranty protection to some or all third parties, at your option).
- c) You may charge a distribution fee for the physical act of transferring a copy, and you may at your option offer warranty protection in exchange for a fee.

Mere aggregation of another unrelated program with this program (or its derivative) on a volume of a storage or distribution medium does not bring the other program under the scope of these terms.

3. You may copy and distribute this program (or a portion or derivative of it, under Paragraph 2) in object code or executable form under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above provided that you also do one of the following:

a) accompany it with the complete corresponding machine-readable source code, which must be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,

b) accompany it with a written offer, valid for at least three years, to give any third party free (except for a nominal shipping charge) a complete machine-readable copy of the corresponding source code, to be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,

c) accompany it with the information you received as to where the corresponding source code may be obtained. (This alternative is allowed only for noncommercial distribution and only if you received the program in object code or executable form alone.)

For an executable file, complete source code means all the source code for all modules it contains; but, as a special exception, it need not include source code for modules which are standard libraries that accompany the operating system on which the executable file runs.

4. You may not copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer this program except as expressly provided under this License Agreement. Any attempt otherwise to copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer this program is void and your rights to use the program under this License agreement shall be automatically terminated. However, parties who have received computer software programs from you with this License Agreement will not have their licenses terminated so long as such parties remain in full compliance.

5. If you wish to incorporate parts of this program into other free programs whose distribution conditions are different, write to the Free Software Foundation at 675 Mass Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139. We have not yet worked out a simple rule that can be stated here, but we will often permit this. We will be guided by the two goals of preserving the free status of all derivatives of our free software and of promoting the sharing and reuse of software. In other words, you are welcome to use, share and improve this program. You are forbidden to forbid anyone else to use, share and improve what you give them. Help stamp out software-hoarding!

Like the Linux kernel, submitted e2fsprogs patches now require the following "sign-off" procedure:

The sign-off is a simple line at the end of the explanation for the patch, which certifies that you wrote it or otherwise have the right to pass it on as an open-source patch. The rules are pretty simple: if you can certify the below:

Developer's Certificate of Origin 1.1
By making a contribution to this project, I certify that:

(a) The contribution was created in whole or in part by me and I have the right to submit it under the open source license indicated in the file; or

(b) The contribution is based upon previous work that, to the best of my knowledge, is covered under an appropriate open source license and I have the right under that license to submit that work with modifications, whether created in whole or in part by me, under the same open source license (unless I am permitted to submit under a different license), as indicated in the file; or

(c) The contribution was provided directly to me by some other person who certified (a), (b) or (c) and I have not modified it.

(d) I understand and agree that this project and the contribution are public and that a record of the contribution (including all personal information I submit with it, including my sign-off) is maintained indefinitely and may be redistributed consistent with this project or the open source license(s) involved.

then you just add a line saying

Description: The eCryptfs mount helper and support libraries; a stacked cryptographic filesystem for Linux. All of the techniques used in eCryptfs are directly based on cryptographic technology that was widely known and in practical use in the 1970's. Security problems often arise when software tries to "invent its own crypto" by deviating from what has been in common practical use for a lengthy period of time. eCryptfs sticks to tried-and-true encryption technology.

In terms of per-file key management, eCryptfs simply uses the methods of PGP (created by Philip Zimmermann in 1991 and formally specified as a public standard in RFC2440 in 1998) and takes the obvious and conceptually trivial step of applying those methods within a filesystem service in the kernel. eCryptfs employs the well-weathered encryption techniques that have been in common use in the community for over two decades. Other cryptographic filesystems published and widely used in the 1990's use the same basic approach to

document version 2.60

encrypting files. eCryptfs just happens to be the first such filesystem to make it upstream in the Linux kernel.

1 Notes on the Free Translation Project
Free software is going international! The Free Translation Project is a way to get maintainers of free software, translators, and users all together, so that free software will gradually become able to speak many languages. A few packages already provide translations for their messages.

1.6 Using 'gettext' in new packages
If you are writing a freely available program and want to internationalize it you are welcome to use GNU 'gettext' in your package. Of course you have to respect the GNU Library General Public License which covers the use of the GNU 'gettext' library. This means in particular that even non-free programs can use 'libintl' as a shared library, whereas only free software can use 'libintl' as a static library or use modified versions of 'libintl'. Once the sources are changed appropriately and the setup can handle the use of 'gettext' the only thing missing are the translations. The Free Translation Project is also available for packages which are not developed inside the GNU project. Therefore the information given above applies also for every other Free Software Project. Contact 'translation@iro.umontreal.ca' to make the '.pot' files available to the translation teams.

This is the copyright holder that gets inserted into the header of the $(DOMAIN).pot file. Set this to the copyright holder of the surrounding package. (Note that the msgstr strings, extracted from the package's sources, belong to the copyright holder of the package.) Translators are expected to transfer the copyright for their translations to this person or entity, or to disclaim their copyright. The empty string stands for the public domain; in this case the translators are expected to disclaim their copyright. COPYRIGHT HOLDER = Red Hat, Inc.

The XFree86/Xorg encoding files are in the public domain.

Most of these encoding files were generated by me in the winter of 1998/1998 from publicly available sources (notably from data files provided by the Unicode Consortium) using a throw-away program written in Common Lisp. Over the years, a number of people have kindly added new encoding files to the collection. If you want to add a copyright

Group:	System Environment/Libraries
Description:	Syslog-ng v2 support library; The EventLog library aims to be a replacement of the simple syslog() API provided on UNIX systems. The major difference between EventLog and syslog is that EventLog tries to add structure to messages. EventLog provides an interface to build, format and output an event record. The exact format and output method can be customized by the administrator via a configuration file. This package is the runtime part of the library.

Expat, Release 2.0.1 - This is Expat, a C library for parsing XML, written by James Clark. Expat is a stream-oriented XML parser. This means that you register handlers with the parser before starting the parse. These handlers are called when the parser discovers the associated structures in the document being parsed. A start tag is an example of the kind of structures for which you may register handlers.

Windows users should use the expat_win32bin package, which includes both precompiled libraries and executables, and source code for developers. Expat is free software. You may copy, distribute, and modify it under the terms of the License contained in the file COPYING distributed with this package. This license is the same as the MIT/X Consortium license.

Versions of Expat that have an odd minor version (the middle number in the release above), are development releases and should be considered as beta software. Releases with even minor version numbers are intended to be production grade software.

Before anything let me thank you on behalf of ComputeVision R&D for putting so much effort into Expect. Part of CV has been using Expect for the past two years or so to build variety of tools including an automated testbed for a product. CV is currently considering shipping the automated testbed to some of its retailers, to enable them to perform their own tests before distributing the product. The Question is, are we allowed to ship Expect? Do we need to ask anyone for permission? Do we need to say or write anything in the documentation? Do we need to pay for it? I have not been able to find any copyright (or indeed copyleft) notices in the usual Expect distribution. Would you be able to clarify our position.

It is my understanding that you are allowed to do just about anything with Expect. You can even sell it. You need not ask our permission. You need not pay for it. (Your tax dollars, in effect, already have paid for it.) You should not claim that you wrote it (since this would be a lie), nor should you attempt to copyright it (this would be fruitless as it is a work of the US government and therefore not subject to copyright). NIST would appreciate any credit you can give for this work. One line may suffice (as far as I'm concerned) although there should be something to the effect that this software was produced for research purposes. No warantee, guarantee, or liability is implied.

Description: The GNU Find Utilities are the basic directory searching utilities of the GNU operating system. These programs are typically used in conjunction with other programs to provide modular and powerful directory search and file locating capabilities to other commands. The tools supplied with this package are: find - search for files in a directory hierarchy; locate - list files in databases that match a pattern; updatedb - update a file name database; and xargs - build and execute command lines from standard input.

Description: Flex is a fast lexical analyser generator. It is a tool for generating scanners, programs that perform pattern-matching on text. Flex is a free (but non-GNU) implementation of the original Unix lex program. Flex is a tool for generating scanners. A scanner, sometimes called a tokenizer, is a program which recognizes lexical patterns in text. The flex program reads user-specified input files, or its standard input if no file names are given, for a description of a scanner to generate. The description is in the form of pairs of regular expressions and C code, called rules. Flex generates a C source file named, "lex.yy.c", which defines the function `yylex()`. The file "lex.yy.c" can be compiled and linked to produce an executable. When the executable is run, it analyzes its input for occurrences of text matching the regular expressions for each rule. Whenever it finds a match, it executes the corresponding C code.

In 2001, Will Estes took over as maintainer of flex. John Millaway is a co-author of the current version of flex. He has contributed a large number of new features, fixed a large number of outstanding bugs and has made significant contributions to the flex documentation. Aaron Stone has contributed several bug fixes to the flex codebase. Vern Paxson wrote flex with the help of many ideas and much inspiration from Van Jacobson. Original version by Jef Poskanzer. The fast table representation is a partial implementation of a design done by Van Jacobson. The implementation was done by Kevin Gong and Vern Paxson.

This is flex, the fast lexical analyzer generator. flex is a tool for generating scanners: programs which recognize lexical patterns in text. More information about flex as well as the latest official release of flex can be found at: <http://flex.sourceforge.net/>

Bug reports should be submitted using the SourceForge Bug Tracker facilities which can be found from flex's SourceForge project page at: <http://sourceforge.net/projects/flex>

There are several mailing lists available as well: flex-announce@lists.sourceforge.net - where posts will be made announcing new releases of flex.

Description:	This package is a source code for Frame Manager Configuration tool. The Frame Manager Configuration tool is a software package whose primary purpose is converting Parse-Classify-Police-Distribute (PCD) descriptions of network packets flow into hardware configuration. The tool provides an abstraction layer between the end customer's vision of the PCD task definition and real hardware implementation. Trying to achieve this aim, the tool frees customers from the need to learn new hardware implementations details, gives a quick start for new customers and simplifies the work for experienced users. Special Notes on Selected Files
Some files in the Freescale FMC package are generated from skeleton files associated with the Flex and Bison programs.

The Bison skeleton files are distributed under GPLv2 but with the following special exception (which applies to the Freescale FMC package):

As a special exception, you may create a larger work that contains part or all of the Bison parser skeleton and distribute that work under terms of your choice, so long as that work isn't itself a parser generator using the skeleton or a modified version thereof as a parser skeleton. Alternatively, if you modify or redistribute the parser skeleton itself, you may (at your option) remove this special exception, which will cause the skeleton and the resulting Bison output files to be licensed under the GNU General Public License without this special exception.

The Flex skeleton file is unrestricted. It's License statement states, in reference to the license of the flex tool itself (which is 2-clause BSD):

Note that the "flex.skl" scanner skeleton carries no copyright notice. You are free to do whatever you please with scanners generated using flex; for them, you are not even bound by the above copyright. Only the generated scanner is contained in the Freescale FMC package.

This package is a source code for Frame Manager Configuration tool. The Frame Manager Configuration tool is a software package whose primary purpose is converting Parse-Classify-Police-Distribute (PCD) descriptions of network packets flow into hardware configuration. The tool provides an abstraction layer between the end customer's vision of the PCD task definition and real hardware implementation. Trying to achieve this aim, the tool frees customers from the need to learn new hardware implementations details, gives a quick start for new customers and simplifies the work for experienced users. Description:	A library for configuring and customizing font access. Font configuration and customization library; Fontconfig (the name is spelled in both capitalized and uncapitalized form) is a computer program library designed to provide system-wide font configuration, customization, and application access. Fontconfig is designed to locate fonts within the system and select them according to requirements specified by applications. Fontconfig is not a rasterization library, nor does it impose a particular rasterization library on the application. The X-specific

This code implements the MD5 message-digest algorithm. The algorithm is due to Ron Rivest. This code was written by Colin Plumb in 1993, no copyright is claimed. This code is in the public domain; do with it what you wish.

Equivalent code is available from RSA Data Security, Inc. This code has been tested against that, and is equivalent, except that you don't need to include two pages of legalese with every copy.

foomatic 4.0.0-2

Software:	foomatic
Version:	4.0.0-2
File or Package:	foomatic-4.0.0-2.fc11.src.rpm
OSI Licenses:	GPLv2, GPLv2+, GPLv2+ w/exception, MIT/X11
Other Licenses:	Open Group EULA, Custom
URL:	http://download.fedora.redhat.com/pub/fedora/linux/releases/11/Fedora/source/SRPMS/foomatic-4.0.0-2.fc11.src.rpm
Group:	User Space Apps / System Environment/Application
Description:	Foomatic is a comprehensive, spooler-independent database of printers, printer drivers, and driver descriptions. It contains utilities to generate driver description files and printer queues for CUPS, LPD, LPRng, and PDQ using the database. There is also the possibility to read the PDL options out of PDL-capable laser printers and take them into account at the driver description file.

Foomatic is a database-driven system for integrating free software printer drivers with common spoolers under Unix. It supports CUPS, LPRng, LPD, GNUlpr, Solaris LP, PPR, PDQ, CPS, and direct printing with every free software printer driver known to us and every printer known to work with these drivers. Foomatic ships in whole or in part in Mandrake/Mandriva >= 7.2 (full Foomatic from 8.1 on), Red Hat >= 7.1, Conectiva >= 8.0, Debian, SuSE, Ubuntu, and probably most other distributions. Foomatic is a configurable printing filter. It uses PPD files as configuration to generate appropriate output

It is possible that certain products which can be built using the JBIG software module might form inventions protected by patent rights in some countries (e.g., by patents about arithmetic coding algorithms owned by IBM and AT&T in the USA). Provision of this software by the original author and OpenPrinting does NOT include any licences for any patents. In those countries where a patent licence is required for certain applications of this software module, you will have to obtain such a licence yourself. The driver can be built without the JBIG module, but then it will not support the above-mentioned printer models any more. Only versions 1.1.x and newer are affected. The older versions 1.0.x do not use the JBIG software for all supported printers.

This driver, like all modern HP drivers, was written by reverse-engineering part of the command set for the printer. HP refused to help; Rene' sensibly suggests that people not buy HP products because of this uncooperative policy.

The legal status of this file is a bit vague. The font glyphs themselves come from XFree86 v4.3.0 (as of this writing), and as part of the X server may be subject to the XFree86 copyrights. The original freeglut fonts were extracted by a utility written by Pawel W. Olszta (see below) and the generated fonts contained his copyright exclusively. Steve Baker asserts that Pawel assigned intellectual property rights to Steve Baker. Steve Baker also asserts that fonts cannot be copyrighted. He has neither stripped the copyright from the freeglut fonts nor formally retitled anything in his name. Since that time, the OpenGLUT project has branched from freeglut, and has made necessary modifications to Pawel's "genfonts" utility. To that extent, OpenGLUT may have some title to this file. What is fairly clear is that the font data is licensed under the XFree86 license (which is variously termed "XFree" and "MIT" by the freeglut project). It is believed that all title holders wish this file to be as useful as possible, and that either the "XFree" or "MIT" license works.

The OpenGL programming world owes a tremendous debt to Mr. Mark J. Kilgard for writing the OpenGL Utility Toolkit, or GLUT. The GLUT library of functions allows an application programmer to create, control, and manipulate windows independent of what operating system the program is running on. By hiding the dependency on the operating system from the application programmer, he allowed people to write truly portable OpenGL applications.

Mr. Kilgard copyrighted his library and gave it a rather unusual license. Under his license, people are allowed freely to copy and distribute the libraries and the source code, but they are not allowed to modify it. For a long time this did not matter because the GLUT library worked so well and because Mr. Kilgard was releasing updates on a regular basis. But © 2009-2011 Wind River Sysrtems, Inc.

with the passage of time, people started wanting some slightly different behaviours in their windowing system. When Mr. Kilgard stopped supporting the GLUT library in 1999, having moved on to bigger and better things, this started to become a problem.

In December 1999, Mr. Paweł Olzsta started work on an open-source clone of the GLUT library. This open-source clone, which does not use any of the GLUT source code, has evolved into the present freeglut library. This documentation specifies the application program interface to the freeglut library.

What - freeglut is a completely OpenSourced alternative to the OpenGL Utility Toolkit (GLUT) library. GLUT was originally written by Mark Kilgard to support the sample programs in the second edition OpenGL 'RedBook'. Since then, GLUT has been used in a wide variety of practical applications because it is simple, universally available and highly portable.

GLUT (and hence freeglut) allows the user to create and manage windows containing OpenGL contexts on a wide range of platforms and also read the mouse, keyboard and joystick functions. freeglut is released under the X-Consortium license.

Why - The original GLUT library seems to have been abandoned with the most recent version (3.7) dating back to August 1998. It's license does not allow anyone to distribute modified the library code. This would be OK, if not for the fact that GLUT is getting old and really needs improvement. Also, GLUT's license is incompatible with some software distributions (eg Xfree86).

Who - freeglut was originally written by Paweł W. Olzsta with contributions from Andreas Umbach and Steve Baker. Steve is now the official owner/maintainer of freeglut.

When - Paweł started freeglut development on December 1st, 1999. The project is now a virtually 100% replacement for the original GLUT with only a few departures (such as the abandonment of SGI-specific features such as the Dials&Buttons box and Dynamic Video Resolution).

Description:	FreeRADIUS is a free open source RADIUS server. FreeRADIUS is the most widely deployed RADIUS server in the world. It is the basis for multiple commercial offerings. It supplies the AAA needs of many Fortune-500 companies and Tier 1 ISPs. It is also widely used in the academic community, including eduroam. The server is fast, feature-rich, modular, and scalable. It supports many common authentication protocols, and the server comes with a PHP based web user administration tool, called dialupadmin, and is currently used as the foundation for multiple commercial RADIUS products.

The FreeRADIUS Server Project is a high performance and highly configurable RADIUS server that is available under the terms of the GNU GPLv2. Using RADIUS allows authentication and authorization for a network to be centralized, and minimizes the number of changes that have to be done when adding or deleting new users to a network. FreeRADIUS can authenticate users on systems such as 802.1x (WiFi), dialup, PPPoE, VPN's, VoIP, and many others. It supports back-end databases such as MySQL, PostgreSQL, Oracle, Microsoft Active Directory, OpenLDAP, and many more. It is used daily to authenticate the Internet access for hundreds of millions of people, in sites ranging from 10 users, to 10 million and more users.

This package was debianized by Chad Miller <cmiller@debian.org> on Fri, 24 Nov 2000 16:25:57 -0500. The packaging was rearranged by Paul Hampson <Paul.Hampson@anu.edu.au> on Sun, 4 May 2003 03:51:20 +1000. The packaging was revamped by Stephen Gran <sgran@debian.org> on Sat, 15 Mar 2008 16:26:51 +0000. It was downloaded from <http://www.freeradius.org/>

FreeRADIUS is the result of the work done by a large number of people. The major contributors are listed here.

Miquel van Smoorenburg <miquels@cistron.nl>

Wrote the original Cistron server, and started the FreeRADIUS source tree.

Alan DeKok <aland@ox.org>

Registered and maintains www.freeradius.org. Wrote the module code. Made the server threaded. Maintains the autoconf and libtool scripts for the server.

Alan Curry <pacman@world.std.com>

Contributed many patches for proxying, replication, realm support.

Mike Machado (mike@innercite.com)

Author of the SQL module.

Adrian Pavlykevych <pam@polynet.lviv.ua>

LDAP module.

Jeff Carneal, Apex Internet Services, Inc.

Wrote the caching support for the Unix module.

miguel a.l. paraz <map@iphil.net>

Wrote the original code which was the basis for the PAM module.

Jochen Friedrich <jochen+freeradius-devel@scram.de>

SMUX / SNMP support.

Nathan Neulinger <nneul@umr.edu>

Kerberos authentication module.

Brandon Lee Poyner <bpoynner@thebiz.net>

Netscape-MTA-MD5 authentication module.

Chris Parker <cparker@starnetusa.net>

document version 2.60

Configuration parser enhancements, 'rlm_attr_filter' module, and proxy enhancements.

Kostas Kalevras <kkalev@noc.ntua.gr>
Contributed the 'dialup_admin' PHP server administration code.

Chris Brotsos <cbrotsos@starnetusa.net>
Memory allocation debugging and proxy enhancements.

This code implements the MD4 message-digest algorithm. The algorithm is due to Ron Rivest. This code was written by Colin Plumb in 1993, no copyright is claimed. This code is in the public domain; do with it what you wish.

Todd C. Miller modified the MD5 code to do MD4 based on RFC 1186. Equivalent code is available from RSA Data Security, Inc. This code has been tested against that, and is equivalent, except that you don't need to include two pages of legalese with every copy.

Functions to access the PAM library. This was taken from the hacks that miguel a.l. paraz <map@iphil.net> did on radiusd-cistron-1.5.3 and migrated to a separate file. That, in fact, was again based on the original stuff from Jeph Blaize <jblaize@kiva.net> done in May 1997.

Description:	FreeType 2 header files; FreeType 2 is a software font engine. FreeType is a software library written in C that implements a font rasterization engine. It is used to rasterize characters into bitmaps and provides support for other font-related operations. The FreeType engine is a free and portable font rendering engine, developed to provide advanced font support for a variety of platforms and environments. FreeType is a library which can open and manages font files as well as efficiently load, hint and render individual glyphs. FreeType is not a font

The FreeType Project LICENSE 2006-Jan-27
Copyright 1996-2002, 2006 by David Turner, Robert Wilhelm, and Werner Lemberg

Introduction - The FreeType Project is distributed in several archive packages; some of them may contain, in addition to the FreeType font engine, various tools and contributions which rely on, or relate to, the FreeType Project.

This license applies to all files found in such packages, and which do not fall under their own explicit license. The license affects thus the FreeType font engine, the test programs, documentation and makefiles, at the very least.

This license was inspired by the BSD, Artistic, and IJG (Independent JPEG Group) licenses, which all encourage inclusion and use of free software in commercial and freeware products alike. As a consequence, its main points are that:

We don't promise that this software works. However, we will be interested in any kind of bug reports. (' as is' distribution)

You can use this software for whatever you want, in parts or full form, without having to pay us. (' royalty-free' usage)

You may not pretend that you wrote this software. If you use it, or only parts of it, in a program, you must acknowledge somewhere in your documentation that you have used the FreeType code. (' credits')

We specifically permit and encourage the inclusion of this software, with or without modifications, in commercial products. We disclaim all warranties covering The FreeType Project and assume no liability related to The FreeType Project.

Finally, many people asked us for a preferred form for a credit/disclaimer to use in compliance with this license. We thus encourage you to use the following text:

Portions of this software are copyright © <year> The FreeType Project (www.freetype.org). All rights reserved.
""

document version 2.60

Please replace <year> with the value from the FreeType version you actually use.

Legal Terms

0. Definitions

Throughout this license, the terms 'package', 'FreeType Project', and 'FreeType archive' refer to the set of files originally distributed by the authors (David Turner, Robert Wilhelm, and Werner Lemberg) as the 'FreeType Project', be they named as alpha, beta or final release.

'You' refers to the licensee, or person using the project, where 'using' is a generic term including compiling the project's source code as well as linking it to form a 'program' or 'executable'.

This program is referred to as 'a program using the FreeType engine'.

This license applies to all files distributed in the original FreeType Project, including all source code, binaries and documentation, unless otherwise stated in the file in its original, unmodified form as distributed in the original archive. If you are unsure whether or not a particular file is covered by this license, you must contact us to verify this.

The FreeType Project is copyright (C) 1996-2000 by David Turner, Robert Wilhelm, and Werner Lemberg. All rights reserved except as specified below.

1. No Warranty

THE FREETYPE PROJECT IS PROVIDED 'AS IS' WITHOUT WARRANTY OF ANY KIND, EITHER EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY AND FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.

IN NO EVENT WILL ANY OF THE AUTHORS OR COPYRIGHT HOLDERS BE LIABLE FOR ANY DAMAGES CAUSED BY THE USE OR THE INABILITY TO USE, OF THE FREETYPE PROJECT.

2. Redistribution

This license grants a worldwide, royalty-free, perpetual and irrevocable right and license to use, execute, perform, compile, display, copy, create derivative works of, distribute and sublicense the FreeType Project (in both source and object code forms) and derivative works thereof for any purpose; and to authorize others to exercise some or all of the rights granted herein, subject to the following conditions:

Redistribution of source code must retain this license file ('FTL.TXT') unaltered; any additions, deletions or changes to the original files must be clearly indicated in accompanying documentation. The copyright notices of the unaltered, original files must be preserved in all copies of source files.

Redistribution in binary form must provide a disclaimer that states that the software is based in part of the work of the FreeType Team, in the distribution documentation. We also encourage you to put an URL to the FreeType web page in your documentation, though this isn't mandatory.

These conditions apply to any software derived from or based on the FreeType Project, not just the unmodified files. If you use our work, you must acknowledge us. However, no fee need be paid to us.

3. Advertising

Neither the FreeType authors and contributors nor you shall use the name of the other for commercial, advertising, or promotional purposes without specific prior written permission. We suggest, but do not require, that you use one or more of the following phrases to refer to this software

As you have not signed this license, you are not required to accept it. However, as the FreeType Project is copyrighted material, only this license, or another one contracted with the authors, grants you the right to use, distribute, and modify it. Therefore, by using, distributing, or modifying the FreeType Project, you indicate that you understand and accept all the terms of this license.

4. Contacts

There are two mailing lists related to FreeType:

freetype@nongnu.org

Discusses general use and applications of FreeType, as well as future and wanted additions to the library and distribution. If you are looking for support, start in this list if you haven't found anything to help you in the documentation.

freetype-devel@nongnu.org

Discusses bugs, as well as engine internals, design issues, specific licenses, porting, etc. Our home page can be found at <http://www.freetype.org>

From:

freetype-2.4.4/freetype-2.4.4/docs/license.txt

The FreeType 2 font engine is copyrighted work and cannot be used legally without a software license. In order to make this project usable to a vast majority of developers, we distribute it under two mutually exclusive open-source licenses.

This means that you must choose one of the two licenses described below, then obey all its terms and conditions when using FreeType 2 in any of your projects or products.

- The FreeType License, found in the file 'FTL.TXT', which is similar to the original BSD license with an advertising clause that forces you to explicitly cite the FreeType project in your product's documentation. All details are in the license file. This license is suited to products which don't use the GNU General Public License.

- The GNU General Public License version 2, found in 'GPL.TXT' (any later version can be used also), for programs which already use the GPL. Note that the FTL is incompatible with the GPL due to its advertisement clause.

The contributed BDF and PCF drivers come with a license similar to that of the X Window System. It is compatible to the above two licenses (see file src/bdf/README and src/pcf/README).

The gzip module uses the zlib license (see src/gzip/zlib.h) which too is compatible to the above two licenses.

TrueType hinting is no longer patented.

From:
freetype-2.4.4/freetype-2.4.4/ChangeLog.21
Added the optional unpatented hinting system for TrueType. It allows typefaces which need hinting to produce correct glyph forms (e.g., Chinese typefaces from Dynalab) to work acceptably without infringing Apple patents.

Description: FUSE (Filesystem in Userspace) is a simple interface for userspace programs to export a virtual filesystem to the Linux kernel. FUSE also aims to provide a secure method for non privileged users to create and mount their own filesystem implementations. Filesystem in Userspace (FUSE) is a loadable kernel module for Unix-like computer operating systems, that allows non-privileged users to create their own file systems without editing the kernel code. This is achieved by running the file system code in user space, while the FUSE module only provides a "bridge" to the actual kernel interfaces. FUSE was officially merged into the mainstream Linux kernel tree in kernel version 2.6.14.

Licensing issues
Under what license is FUSE released?
The kernel part is released under the GNU GPL. Libfuse is released under the GNU LGPLv2. All other parts (examples, fusermount, etc) are released under the GNU GPL.

Under what conditions may I modify or distribute FUSE?
See the files COPYING and COPYING.LIB in the distribution. More information can be found at <http://www.gnu.org/licenses/>

Under what conditions may I distribute a filesystem which uses libfuse?
See COPYING.LIB in the distribution. In simple terms as long as you are linking dynamically (the default) there are no limitations on linking with libfuse. For example you may distribute the filesystem itself in binary form, without source code, under any proprietary license.

Under what conditions may I distribute a filesystem that uses the raw kernel interface of FUSE?
There are no restrictions whatsoever for using the raw kernel interface.

gawk 3.1.5-18

Software:	gawk
Version:	3.1.5-18
File or Package:	gawk-3.1.5-18.fc10.src.rpm
OSI Licenses:	GPLv2, GPLv2+, GPLv2+ w/exception, LGPLv2, LGPLv2+, LGPLv2.1+, FDLv1.2, MIT/X11, BSDv1 (UCB)
Other Licenses:	Custom
URL:	http://archives.fedoraproject.org/pub/archive/fedora/linux/releases/10/Fedora/source/SRPMS/gawk-3.1.5-18.fc10.src.rpm
Group:	User Space Apps / Applications/Text
Description:	The GNU version of the awk text processing utility. The gawk package contains the GNU version of awk, a text processing utility. Awk interprets a special-purpose programming language to do quick and easy text pattern matching and reformatting jobs. Many computer users need to manipulate text files: extract and then operate on data from parts of certain lines while discarding the rest, make changes in various text files wherever certain patterns appear, and so on. To write a program to do these things in a language such as C or Pascal is a time-consuming inconvenience that may take many lines of code. The job is easy with awk, especially the GNU implementation: Gawk. The awk utility interprets a special-purpose programming language that makes it possible to handle many data-reformatting jobs with just a few lines of code.

GCC is a key component of the GNU toolchain. GCC is often the compiler of choice for developing software that is required to execute on a wide variety of hardware. Differences in native compilers lead to difficulties in developing code that will compile correctly on all the compilers and build scripts that will run for all the platforms. By using GCC, the same parser is used for all platforms, so if the code compiles on one, chances are high that it compiles on all.

Common Usage: GNU Compiler

Notes: The following software is intended to be used as a host utility to facilitate development of a target runtime image. If you choose to include it on a target runtime image, you may be subject to additional open source license compliance considerations. It is recommend you consult with your legal counsel for guidance and advice on your particular situation.

GCC RUNTIME LIBRARY EXCEPTION
Version 3.1, 31 March 2009

Copyright (C) 2009 Free Software Foundation, Inc. <<http://fsf.org/>>

Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies OF THIS license document, but changing it is not allowed. This GCC Runtime Library Exception ("Exception") is an additional permission under section 7 of the GNU General Public License, version 3 ("GPLv3"). It applies to a given file (the "Runtime Library") that bears a notice placed by the copyright holder of the file stating that the file is governed by GPLv3 along with this Exception. When you use GCC to compile a program, GCC may combine portions of certain GCC header files and runtime libraries with the compiled program. The purpose of this Exception is to allow compilation of non-GPL (including proprietary) programs to use, in this way, the header files and runtime libraries covered by this Exception.

0. Definitions.

A file is an "Independent Module" if it either requires the Runtime Library for execution after a Compilation Process, or makes use of an interface provided by the Runtime Library, but is not otherwise based on the Runtime Library.

"GCC" means a version of the GNU Compiler Collection, with or without modifications, governed by version 3 (or a specified later version) of the GNU General Public License (GPL) with the option of using any subsequent versions published by the FSF.

"GPL-compatible Software" is software whose conditions of propagation, modification and use would permit combination with GCC in accord with the license of GCC.

"Target Code" refers to output from any compiler for a real or virtual target processor architecture, in executable form or suitable FOR input to an assembler, loader, linker and/or execution phase. Notwithstanding that, Target Code does not include data in any format that is used as a compiler intermediate representation, or used for producing a compiler intermediate representation.

The "Compilation Process" transforms code entirely represented in non-intermediate languages designed for human-written code, and/or in Java Virtual Machine byte code, into Target Code. Thus, for example, use of © 2009-2011 Wind River Systems, Inc.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system, toolchain, board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

source code generators and preprocessors need not be considered part of the Compilation Process, since the Compilation Process can be understood as starting with the output of the generators OR preprocessors.

A Compilation Process is "Eligible" if it is done using GCC, alone OR with other GPL-compatible software, or if it is done without using any work based on GCC. For example, using non-GPL-compatible Software to optimize any GCC intermediate representations would not qualify as an Eligible Compilation Process.

1. Grant of Additional Permission.

You have permission to propagate a work of Target Code formed by combining the Runtime Library with Independent Modules, even if such propagation would otherwise violate the terms of GPLv3, provided that all Target Code was generated by Eligible Compilation Processes. You may then convey such a combination under terms of your choice, consistent with the licensing of the Independent Modules.

2. No Weakening of GCC Copyleft.

The availability of this Exception does not imply any general presumption that third-party software is unaffected by the copyleft requirements of the license of GCC.

Copyright Status - SAX is free!

In fact, it's not possible to own a license to SAX, since it's been placed in the public domain.

No Warranty - Because SAX is released to the public domain, there is no warranty for the design or for the software implementation, to the extent permitted by applicable law. Except when otherwise stated in writing the copyright holders and/or other parties provide SAX "as is" without warranty of any kind, either expressed or implied, including, BUT NOT limited to, the implied warranties of merchantability and FITNESS FOR a particular purpose. The entire risk as to the quality and performance of SAX is with you. Should SAX prove defective, you assume the cost of all necessary servicing, repair or correction.

In no event unless required by applicable law or agreed to in writing will any copyright holder, or any other party who may modify and/or redistribute SAX, be liable to you for damages, including any general, special, incidental or consequential damages arising OUT OF the use or inability to use SAX (including but not limited to loss of data or data being rendered inaccurate or losses sustained by you OR third parties or a failure of the SAX to operate with any other programs), even if such holder or other party has been advised of the possibility of such damages.

License

There are two licenses affecting GNU libstdc++: one for the code, and one for the documentation. There is a license section in the FAQ regarding common questions. If you have more questions, ask the FSF or the gcc mailing list.

The Code: GPL

The source code is distributed under the GNU General Public License version 3, with the addition under section 7 of an exception described in the "GCC Runtime Library Exception, version 3.1" as follows (or see the file COPYING.RUNTIME):

GCC RUNTIME LIBRARY EXCEPTION
Version 3.1, 31 March 2009

Copyright (C) 2009 Free Software Foundation, Inc.

Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies of this license document, but changing it is not allowed. This GCC Runtime Library Exception ("Exception") is an additional permission under section 7 of the GNU General Public License, version 3 ("GPLv3"). It applies to a given file (the "Runtime Library") that bears a notice placed by the copyright holder of the file stating that the file is governed by GPLv3 along with this Exception.

When you use GCC to compile a program, GCC may combine portions of certain GCC header files and runtime libraries with the compiled program. The purpose of this Exception is to allow compilation of non-GPL (including proprietary) programs to use, in this way, the header files and runtime libraries covered by this Exception.

0. Definitions.

A file is an "Independent Module" if it either requires the Runtime Library for execution after a Compilation Process, or makes use of an interface provided by the Runtime Library, but is not otherwise based on the Runtime Library.

"GCC" means a version of the GNU Compiler Collection, with or without modifications, governed by version 3 (or a specified later version) of the GNU General Public License (GPL) with the option of using any subsequent versions published by the FSF.

"GPL-compatible Software" is software whose conditions of propagation, modification and use would permit combination with GCC in accord with the license of GCC.

It does not contain information for the build system, toolchain, board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

"Target Code" refers to output from any compiler for a real or virtual target processor architecture, in executable form or suitable for input to an assembler, loader, linker and/or execution phase. Notwithstanding that, Target Code does not include data in any format that is used as a compiler intermediate representation, or used for producing a compiler intermediate representation.

The "Compilation Process" transforms code entirely represented in non-intermediate languages designed for human-written code, and/or in Java Virtual Machine byte code, into Target Code. Thus, for example, use of source code generators and preprocessors need not be considered part of the Compilation Process, since the Compilation Process can be understood as starting with the output of the generators or preprocessors.

A Compilation Process is "Eligible" if it is done using GCC, alone or with other GPL-compatible software, or if it is done without using any work based on GCC. For example, using non-GPL-compatible Software to optimize any GCC intermediate representations would not qualify as an Eligible Compilation Process.

1. Grant of Additional Permission.

You have permission to propagate a work of Target Code formed by combining the Runtime Library with Independent Modules, even if such propagation would otherwise violate the terms of GPLv3, provided that all Target Code was generated by Eligible Compilation Processes. You may then convey such a combination under terms of your choice, consistent with the licensing of the Independent Modules.

2. No Weakening of GCC Copyleft.

The availability of this Exception does not imply any general presumption that third-party software is unaffected by the copyleft requirements of the license of GCC.

Hopefully that text is self-explanatory. If it isn't, you need to speak to your lawyer, or the Free Software Foundation.

The Documentation: GPL, FDL

The documentation shipped with the library and made available over the web, excluding the pages generated from source comments, are copyrighted by the Free Software Foundation, and placed under the GNU Free Documentation License version 1.2. There are no Front-Cover Texts, no Back-Cover Texts, and no Invariant Sections. For documentation generated by doxygen or other automated tools via processing source code comments and markup, the original source code license applies to the generated files. Thus, the doxygen documents are licensed GPL. If you plan on making copies of the documentation, please let us know. We can probably offer suggestions.

Linking this library statically or dynamically with other modules is making a combined work based on this library. Thus, the terms and conditions of the GNU General Public License cover the whole combination. As a special exception, the copyright holders of this library give you permission to link this library with independent modules to produce an executable, regardless of the license terms of these independent modules, and to copy and distribute the resulting executable under terms of your choice, provided that you also meet, for each linked independent module, the terms and conditions of the license of that module. An independent module is a module which is not derived from or based on this library. If you modify this library, you may extend this exception to your version of the library, but you are not obligated to do so. If you do not wish to do so, delete this exception statement from your version.

A few of the files needed to use the GNU-style build procedure come with slightly different licenses, though they are all similar in spirit. A few are GPL'ed, but with an exception that should cover all uses in the collector. (If you are concerned about such things, I recommend you look at the notice in `config.guess` or `lmain.sh`.)

Linking this library statically or dynamically with other modules is making a combined work based on this library. Thus, the terms and conditions of the GNU General Public License cover the whole combination. As a special exception, the copyright holders of this library give you permission to link this library with independent modules to produce an executable, regardless of the license terms of these independent modules, and to copy and distribute the resulting executable under terms of your choice, provided that you also meet, for each linked independent module, the terms and conditions of the license of that module. An independent module is a module which is not derived from or based on this library. If you modify this library, you may extend this exception to your version of the library, but you are not obligated to do so. If you do not wish to do so, delete this exception statement from your version.

Decryption code comes from crypt.c by Info-ZIP but has been greatly reduced in terms of compatibility with older software. The following is from the original crypt.c. Code woven in by Terry Thorsen 1/2003.

Copyright (c) 1990-2000 Info-ZIP. All rights reserved.

See the accompanying file LICENSE, version 2000-Apr-09 or later (the contents of which are also included in zip.h) for terms of use. If, for some reason, all these files are missing, the Info-ZIP license also may be found at: <ftp://ftp.info-zip.org/pub/infozip/license.html>

The encryption/decryption parts of this source code (as opposed TO THE non-echoing password parts) were originally written in Europe. The whole source package can be freely distributed, including from the USA. (Prior to January 2000, re-export from the US was a violation of US law.)

This encryption code is a direct transcription of the algorithm from Roger Schlafly, described by Phil Katz in the file appnote.txt. This file (appnote.txt) is distributed with the PKZIP program (even in the version without encryption capabilities).

ftp://ftp.info-zip.org/pub/infozip/license.html
License - In December 1999, with the release of Zip 2.3, Info-ZIP switched from its old, ad hoc license (embodied in the COPYING file) to a new, more standard version based on the BSD license. Here is the text of the new license, which applies to all source files in Zip 2.3 and later, UnZip 5.41 and later, WiZ 5.0 and later, and MacZip 1.05 and later, except where explicitly stated otherwise:

This is version 2007-Mar-4 of the Info-ZIP license. The definitive version of this document should be available at <ftp://ftp.info-zip.org/pub/infozip/license.html> indefinitely and a copy at <http://www.info-zip.org/pub/infozip/license.html>.

Copyright (c) 1990-2007 Info-ZIP. All rights reserved.

For the purposes of this copyright and license, "Info-ZIP" is defined as the following set of individuals:

This software is provided "as is," without warranty of any kind, express or implied. In no event shall Info-ZIP or its contributors be held liable for any direct, indirect, incidental, special or consequential damages arising out of the use of or inability to use this software. Permission is granted to anyone to use this software for any purpose, including commercial applications, and to alter it and redistribute it freely, subject to the above disclaimer and the following restrictions:

Redistributions of source code (in whole or in part) must retain the above copyright notice, definition, disclaimer, and this list of conditions.

Redistributions in binary form (compiled executables and libraries) must reproduce the above copyright notice, definition, disclaimer, and this list of conditions in documentation and/or other materials provided with the distribution. The sole exception to this condition is redistribution of a standard UnZipSFX binary (including SFXWiz) as part of a self-extracting archive; that is permitted without inclusion of this license, as long as the normal SFX banner has not been removed from the binary or disabled.

Altered versions including, but not limited to, ports to new operating systems, existing ports with new graphical interfaces, versions with modified or added functionality, and dynamic, shared, or static library versions not from Info-ZIP must be plainly marked as such and must not be misrepresented as being the original source or, if binaries, compiled from the original source. Such altered versions also must not be misrepresented as being Info-ZIP releases including, but not limited to, labeling of the altered versions with the names "Info-ZIP" (or any variation thereof, including, but not limited to, different capitalizations), "Pocket UnZip," "WiZ" or "MacZip" without the explicit permission of Info-ZIP. Such altered versions are further prohibited from misrepresentative use of the Zip-Bugs or Info-ZIP e-mail addresses or the Info-ZIP URL(s), such as to imply Info-ZIP will provide support for the altered versions.

Info-ZIP retains the right to use the names "Info-ZIP," "Zip," "UnZip," "UnZipSFX," "WiZ," "Pocket UnZip," "Pocket Zip," and "MacZip" for its own source and binary releases.

Linking this library statically or dynamically with other modules is making a combined work based on this library. Thus, the terms and conditions of the GNU General Public License cover the whole combination. As a special exception, the copyright holders of this library give you permission to link this library with independent modules to produce an executable, regardless of the license terms of these independent modules, and to copy and distribute the resulting executable under terms of your choice, provided that you also meet, for each linked independent module, the terms and conditions of the license of that module. An independent module is a module which is not derived from or based on this library. If you modify this library, you may extend this exception to your version of the library, but you are not obligated to do so. If you do not wish to do so, delete this exception statement from your version.

License - There are two licenses affecting GNU libstdc++: one for the code, and one for the documentation.

There is a license section in the FAQ regarding common questions. If you have more questions, ask the FSF or the gcc mailing list.

The Code: GPL
The source code is distributed under the GNU General Public License version 2, with the so-called "Runtime Exception" as follows (or see any header or implementation file):

As a special exception, you may use this file as part of a Free Software library without restriction. Specifically, if other files instantiate templates or use macros or inline functions from this file, or you compile this file and link it with other files to produce an executable, this file does not by itself cause the resulting executable to be covered by the GNU General Public License. This exception does not however invalidate any other reasons why the executable file might be covered by the GNU General Public License.

Hopefully that text is self-explanatory. If it isn't, you need to speak to your lawyer, or the Free Software Foundation.

The Documentation: GPL, FDL

The documentation shipped with the library and made available over the web, excluding the pages generated from source comments, are copyrighted by the Free Software Foundation, and placed under the GNU Free Documentation License version 1.2. There are no Front-Cover Texts, no Back-Cover Texts, and no Invariant Sections.

For documentation generated by doxygen or other automated tools via processing source code comments and markup, the original source code license applies to the generated files. Thus, the doxygen documents are licensed GPL.

If you plan on making copies of the documentation, please let us know. We can probably offer suggestions.

to produce an executable, this does not by itself cause the resulting executable to be covered by the GNU General Public License. Your use of that executable is in no way restricted on account of linking the ServerHandler library code into it.

This exception does not however invalidate any other reasons why the executable file might be covered by the GNU General Public License. This exception applies only to the code released by The Free Software Foundation under the name ServerHandler. If you copy code from other sources under the General Public License into a copy of ServerHandler, as the General Public License permits, the exception does not apply to the code that you add in this way. To avoid misleading anyone as to the status of such modified files, you must delete this exception notice from them.

If you write modifications of your own for ServerHandler, it is your choice whether to permit this exception to apply to your modifications. If you do not wish that, delete this exception notice.

Patents: Apple Computer holds three United States Patents for the mathematical algorithms that are used by TrueType instructions. The monopoly granted by these patents will expire in October 2009. Before the expiration date, a license must be obtained from Apple Computer to use the patented technology inside the United States. For other countries, different dates might apply, or no license might be needed.

document version 2.60

The default build of this class does not use the patented algorithms. If you have obtained a license from Apple, or if the patent protection has expired, or if no license is required for your country, you can set a flag in the source file which will enable the use of the patented mathematical algorithms. The relevant patents are listed subsequently.

United States Patent 5155805, Method and Apparatus for Moving Control Points in Displaying Digital Typeface on Raster Output Devices, invented by Sampo Kaasila, assigned to Apple Computer. Filing date: May 8, 1989. Date of patent: October 13, 1992.

United States Patent 5159668, Method and Apparatus for Manipulating Outlines in Improving Digital Typeface on Raster Output Devices, invented by Sampo Kaasila, assigned to Apple Computer. Filing date: May 8, 1989. Date of patent: October 27, 1992.

United States Patent 5325479, Method and Apparatus for Moving Control Points in Displaying Digital Typeface on Raster Output Devices, invented by Sampo Kaasila, assigned to Apple Computer. Filing date: May 28, 1989. Date of patent: June 28, 1994 (with a statement that [t]he portion of the term of this patent subsequent to Oct. 13, 2009 has been disclaimed.)

Indicates whether or not to perform hinting operations that are protected by a number of US patents, two of which will expire on October 13, 2009, and one of which will expire on October 27, 2009.

Linking this library statically or dynamically with other modules is making a combined work based on this library. Thus, the terms and conditions of the GNU General Public License cover the whole combination. As a special exception, the copyright holders of this library give you permission to link this library with independent modules to produce an executable, regardless of the license terms of these independent modules, and to copy and distribute the resulting executable under terms of your choice, provided that you also meet, for each linked independent module, the terms and conditions of the license of that module. An independent module is a module which is not derived from or based on this library. If you modify this library, you may extend this exception to your version of the library, but you are not obligated to do so. If you do not wish to do so, delete this exception statement from your version.

RC4 is a stream cipher developed by Ron Rivest. Until 1994 RC4 was a trade secret of RSA Data Security, Inc., when it was released anonymously to a mailing list. This version is a descendent of that code, and since there is no proof that the leaked version was in fact RC4 and because "RC4" is a trademark, it is called "ARCFOUR", short for "Allegedly RC4".

Group:	User Space Libraries
Description:	A graphics library for quick creation of PNG or JPEG images. The gd graphics library allows your code to quickly draw images complete with lines, arcs, text, multiple colors, cut and paste from other images, and flood fills, and to write out the result as a PNG or JPEG file. This is particularly useful in Web applications, where PNG and JPEG are two of the formats accepted for inline images by most browsers. Note that gd is not a paint program. GD is an open source code library for the dynamic creation of images by programmers. GD creates PNG, JPEG and GIF images, among other formats. GD is commonly used to generate charts, graphics, thumbnails, and most anything else, on the fly. While not restricted to use on the web, the most common applications of GD involve web site development.

This distribution contains the sixth public release of the Independent JPEG Group's free JPEG software. You are welcome to redistribute this software and to use it for any purpose, subject to the conditions under LEGAL ISSUES, below.

OVERVIEW

This package contains C software to implement JPEG image compression and decompression. JPEG (pronounced "jay-peg") is a standardized compression method for full-color and gray-scale images. JPEG is intended for compressing "real-world" scenes; line drawings, cartoons and other non-realistic images are not its strong suit. JPEG is lossy, meaning that the output image is not exactly identical to the input image. Hence you must not use JPEG if you have to have identical output bits. However, on typical photographic images, very good compression levels can be obtained with no visible change, and remarkably high compression levels are possible if you can tolerate a low-quality image. For more details, see the references, or just experiment with various compression settings.

This software implements JPEG baseline, extended-sequential, and progressive compression processes. Provision is made for supporting all variants of these processes, although some uncommon parameter settings aren't implemented yet. For legal reasons, we are not distributing code for the arithmetic-coding variants of JPEG; see LEGAL ISSUES. We have made no provision for supporting the hierarchical or lossless processes defined in the standard.

The emphasis in designing this software has been on achieving portability and flexibility, while also making it fast enough to be useful. In particular, the software is not intended to be read as a tutorial on JPEG. (See the REFERENCES section for introductory material.) Rather, it is intended to be reliable, portable, industrial-strength code. We do not claim to have achieved that goal in every aspect of the software, but we strive for it.

We welcome the use of this software as a component of commercial products. No royalty is required, but we do ask for an acknowledgement in product documentation, as described under LEGAL ISSUES.

LEGAL ISSUES

In plain English:

1. We don't promise that this software works. (But if you find any bugs, please let us know!)

2. You can use this software for whatever you want. You don't have to pay us.

3. You may not pretend that you wrote this software. If you use it in a program, you must acknowledge somewhere in your documentation that you've used the IJG code.

In legalese:

The authors make NO WARRANTY or representation, either express or implied, with respect to this software, its quality, accuracy, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. This software is provided "AS IS", and you, its user, assume the entire risk as to its quality and accuracy.

document version 2.60

This software is copyright (C) 1991-1998, Thomas G. Lane. All Rights Reserved except as specified below.

Permission is hereby granted to use, copy, modify, and distribute this software (or portions thereof) for any purpose, without fee, subject to these conditions:

(1) If any part of the source code for this software is distributed, then this README file must be included, with this copyright and no-warranty notice unaltered; and any additions, deletions, or changes to the original files must be clearly indicated in accompanying documentation.

(2) If only executable code is distributed, then the accompanying documentation must state that "this software is based in part on the work of the Independent JPEG Group".

(3) Permission for use of this software is granted only if the user accepts full responsibility for any undesirable consequences; the authors accept NO LIABILITY for damages of any kind.

These conditions apply to any software derived from or based on the IJG code, not just to the unmodified library. If you use our work, you ought to acknowledge us. Permission is NOT granted for the use of any IJG author's name or company name in advertising or publicity relating to this software or products derived from it. This software may be referred to only as "the Independent JPEG Group's software".

We specifically permit and encourage the use of this software as the basis of commercial products, provided that all warranty or liability claims are assumed by the product vendor.

ansi2knr.c is included in this distribution by permission of L. Peter Deutsch, sole proprietor of its copyright holder, Aladdin Enterprises of Menlo Park, CA. ansi2knr.c is NOT covered by the above copyright and conditions, but instead by the usual distribution terms of the Free Software Foundation; principally, that you must include source code if you redistribute it. (See the file ansi2knr.c for full details.) However, since ansi2knr.c is not needed as part of any program generated from the IJG code, this does not limit you more than the foregoing paragraphs do.

The Unix configuration script "configure" was produced with GNU Autoconf. It is copyright by the Free Software Foundation but is freely distributable.

The same holds for its supporting scripts (config.guess, config.sub, ltconfig, ltmain.sh). Another support script, install-sh, is copyright by M.I.T. but is also freely distributable.

It appears that the arithmetic coding option of the JPEG spec is covered by patents owned by IBM, AT&T, and Mitsubishi. Hence arithmetic coding cannot legally be used without obtaining one or more licenses. For this reason, support for arithmetic coding has been removed from the free JPEG software. (Since arithmetic coding provides only a marginal gain over the unpatented Huffman mode, it is unlikely that very many implementations will support it.) So far as we are aware, there are no patent restrictions on the remaining code.

The IJG distribution formerly included code to read and write GIF files. To avoid entanglement with the Unisys LZW patent, GIF reading support has been removed altogether, and the GIF writer has been simplified to produce "uncompressed GIFs". This technique does not use the LZW algorithm; the resulting GIF files are larger than usual, but are readable by all standard GIF decoders.

GIF support has been restored in gd 2.0.28 and above. The well-known patents on LZW compression held by Unisys have expired in all countries. British Telecom and IBM may hold related patents but have never chosen to require royalties for GIF applications, to the best of my knowledge. I am not a lawyer and cannot give legal advice regarding this issue. PNG remains a superior format especially if lossless truecolor images are needed.

Description:	The GNU Debugger, usually called just GDB, is the standard debugger for the GNU software system. It is a portable debugger that runs on many Unix-like systems and works for many programming languages, including Ada, C, C++, FreeBASIC, and Fortran. GDB, the GNU Project debugger, allows you to see what is going on 'inside' another program while it executes - or what another program was doing at the moment it crashed.

GDB can do four main kinds of things (plus other things in support of these) to help you catch bugs in the act: Start your program, specifying anything that might affect its behavior. Make your program stop on specified conditions. Examine what has happened, when your program has stopped.

document version 2.60

Change things in your program, so you can experiment with correcting the effects of one bug and go on to learn about another. The program being debugged can be written in Ada, C, C++, Objective-C, Pascal (and many other languages). Those programs might be executing on the same machine as GDB (native) or on another machine (remote). GDB can run on most popular UNIX and Microsoft Windows variants.

Common Usage: Utility
Package Size: 155.8 MB
Folders / Files: 227 / 7,541
Source Path: wrlinux-3.0/layers/wrll-toolchain-4.4a-336/common/packages

Notes: The following software is intended to be used as a host utility to facilitate development of a target runtime image. If you choose to include it on a target runtime image, you may be subject to additional open source license compliance considerations. It is recommend you consult with your legal counsel for guidance and advice on your particular situation.

Permission is granted to make and distribute verbatim copies of this manual provided the copyright notice and this permission notice are preserved on all copies.

Permission is granted to copy and distribute modified versions of this manual under the conditions for verbatim copying, provided also that the entire resulting derived work is distributed under the terms of a permission notice identical to this one.

Permission is granted to copy and distribute translations of this manual into another language, under the above conditions for modified versions.

GNU `dbm' is a library of functions implementing a hashed database on a disk file. This manual documents GNU `dbm' Version 1.8.3 (`gdbm'). The software was written by Philip A. Nelson. This document was originally written by Pierre Gaumond from texts written by Phil.

Copying Conditions.

This library is "free"; this means that everyone is free to use it and free to redistribute it on a free basis. GNU `dbm' (`gdbm') is not in the public domain; it is copyrighted and there are restrictions on its distribution, but these restrictions are designed to permit everything that a good cooperating citizen would want to do. What is not allowed is to try to prevent others from further sharing any version of `gdbm' that they might get from you.

Specifically, we want to make sure that you have the right to give away copies `gdbm', that you receive source code or else can get it if you want it, that you can change these functions or use pieces of them in new free programs, and that you know you can do these things.

To make sure that everyone has such rights, we have to forbid you to deprive anyone else of these rights. For example, if you distribute copies `gdbm', you must give the recipients all the rights that you have. You must make sure that they, too, receive or can get the source code. And you must tell them their rights.

Also, for our own protection, we must make certain that everyone finds out that there is no warranty for anything in the `gdbm' distribution. If these functions are modified by someone else and passed on, we want their recipients to know that what they have is not what we distributed, so that any problems introduced by others will not reflect on our reputation. `gdbm' is currently distributed under the terms of the GNU General Public License, Version 2. (NOT_ under the GNU General Library Public License.) A copy the GNU General Public License is included with the distribution of `gdbm'.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system, toolchain, board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

SIL OPEN FONT LICENSE Version 1.1 - 26 February 2007

PREAMBLE

The goals of the Open Font License (OFL) are to stimulate worldwide development of collaborative font projects, to support the font creation efforts of academic and linguistic communities, and to provide a free and open framework in which fonts may be shared and improved in partnership with others. The OFL allows the licensed fonts to be used, studied, modified and redistributed freely as long as they are not sold by themselves. The fonts, including any derivative works, can be bundled, embedded, redistributed and/or sold with any software provided that any reserved names are not used by derivative works. The fonts and derivatives, however, cannot be released under any other type of license.

© 2009-2011 Wind River Systems, Inc.

document version 2.60

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system, toolchain, board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

The requirement for fonts to remain under this license does not apply to any document created using the fonts or their derivatives.

DEFINITIONS

"Font Software" refers to the set of files released by the Copyright Holder(s) under this license and clearly marked as such. This may include source files, build scripts and documentation.

"Reserved Font Name" refers to any names specified as such after the copyright statement(s).

"Original Version" refers to the collection of Font Software components as distributed by the Copyright Holder(s).

"Modified Version" refers to any derivative made by adding to, deleting, or substituting — in part or in whole — any of the components of the Original Version, by changing formats or by porting the Font Software to a new environment.

"Author" refers to any designer, engineer, programmer, technical writer or other person who contributed to the Font Software.

PERMISSION & CONDITIONS

Permission is hereby granted, free of charge, to any person obtaining a copy of the Font Software, to use, study, copy, merge, embed, modify, redistribute, and sell modified and unmodified copies of the Font Software, subject to the following conditions:

1) Neither the Font Software nor any of its individual components, in Original or Modified Versions, may be sold by itself.

2) Original or Modified Versions of the Font Software may be bundled, redistributed and/or sold with any software, provided that each copy contains the above copyright notice and this license. These can be included either as stand-alone text files, human-readable headers or in the appropriate machine-readable metadata fields within text or binary files as long as those fields can be easily viewed by the user.

3) No Modified Version of the Font Software may use the Reserved Font Name(s) unless explicit written permission is granted by the corresponding Copyright Holder. This restriction only applies to the primary font name as presented to the users.

4) The name(s) of the Copyright Holder(s) or the Author(s) of the Font Software shall not be used to promote, endorse or advertise any Modified Version, except to acknowledge the contribution(s) of the Copyright Holder(s) and the Author(s) or with their explicit written permission.

5) The Font Software, modified or unmodified, in part or in whole, must be distributed entirely under this license, and must not be distributed under any other license. The requirement for fonts to remain under this license does not apply to any document created using the Font Software.

TERMINATION

This license becomes null and void if any of the above conditions are not met.

DISCLAIMER

THE FONT SOFTWARE IS PROVIDED "AS IS", WITHOUT WARRANTY OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO ANY WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE AND NONINFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT, PATENT, TRADEMARK, OR OTHER RIGHT.

IN NO EVENT SHALL THE COPYRIGHT HOLDER BE LIABLE FOR ANY CLAIM, DAMAGES OR OTHER LIABILITY, INCLUDING ANY GENERAL, SPECIAL, INDIRECT, INCIDENTAL, OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES, WHETHER IN AN ACTION OF CONTRACT, TORT OR OTHERWISE, ARISING FROM, OUT OF THE USE OR INABILITY TO USE THE FONT SOFTWARE OR FROM OTHER DEALINGS IN THE FONT SOFTWARE.

This package is based very heavily on the work of Uli Wortmann (uli@bonk.ethz.ch), and I do not claim to be the original author of very much of this code. Uli has done a tremendous amount of excellent work, and this package is a modification to his driver by me to add the ability to print to the DeskJet 880C, 882C, and 895C printers. Under the terms of the GNU General Public License (see LICENSING TERMS below), I am distributing this package under the same license. Please also see the file readme.hp8 for Uli's notes about the package. It is my intent to submit this work as a patch to Uli Wortmann for inclusion in the original HP850C driver package.

DISCLAIMER:

This is a work still under development, and as such I do not guarantee it will work (see LICENSING TERMS above). However, please send bug reports to me (mgelhaus@proaxis.com), along with as much information as you can.

SYSTEM REQUIREMENTS:

This package is designed to work with Aladdin Ghostscript 5.50 (available from <ftp://ftp.cs.wisc.edu/ghost/aladdin/g550/>). It may work with earlier versions of Ghostscript, but I have not tested it.

ghostscript-8.64-1.wrs.src/ghostscript-8.64-wrs/ghostscript-8.64/jpeg/README

This distribution contains the sixth public release of the Independent JPEG Group's free JPEG software. You are welcome to redistribute this software and to use it for any purpose, subject to the conditions under LEGAL ISSUES, below. This software is the work of Tom Lane, Philip Gladstone, Jim Boucher, Lee Crocker, Julian Minguillon, Luis Ortiz, George Phillips, Davide Rossi, Guido Vollbeding, Ge' Weijers, and other members of the Independent JPEG Group.

IJG is not affiliated with the official ISO JPEG standards committee. This package contains C software to implement JPEG image compression and decompression. JPEG (pronounced "jay-peg") is a standardized compression method for full-color and gray-scale images. JPEG is intended for compressing "real-world" scenes; line drawings, cartoons and other non-realistic images are not its strong suit. JPEG is lossy, meaning that the output image is not exactly identical to the input image. Hence you must not use JPEG if you have to have identical output bits. However, on typical photographic images, very good compression levels can be obtained with no visible change, and remarkably high compression levels are possible if you can tolerate a low-quality image. For more details, see the references, or just experiment with various compression settings.

This software implements JPEG baseline, extended-sequential, and progressive compression processes. Provision is made for supporting all variants of these processes, although some uncommon parameter settings aren't implemented yet. For legal reasons, we are not distributing code for the arithmetic-coding variants of JPEG; see LEGAL ISSUES. We have made no provision for supporting the hierarchical or lossless processes defined in the standard. The emphasis in designing this software has been on achieving portability and flexibility, while also making it fast enough to be useful. In particular, the software is not intended to be read as a tutorial on JPEG. (See the REFERENCES section for introductory material.) Rather, it is intended to be reliable, portable, industrial-strength code. We do not claim to have achieved that goal in every aspect of the software, but we strive for it.

We welcome the use of this software as a component of commercial products. No royalty is required, but we do ask for an acknowledgement in product documentation, as described under LEGAL ISSUES.

LEGAL ISSUES

In plain English:

1. We don't promise that this software works. (But if you find any bugs, please let us know!)
2. You can use this software for whatever you want. You don't have to pay us.
3. You may not pretend that you wrote this software. If you use it in a program, you must acknowledge somewhere in your documentation that you've used the IJG code.

In legalese:

The authors make NO WARRANTY or representation, either express or implied, with respect to this software, its quality, accuracy, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. This software is provided "AS IS", and you, its user, assume the entire risk as to its quality and accuracy.

This software is copyright (C) 1991-1998, Thomas G. Lane. All Rights Reserved except as specified below.

Permission is hereby granted to use, copy, modify, and distribute this software (or portions thereof) for any purpose, without fee, subject to these conditions:

(1) If any part of the source code for this software is distributed, then this README file must be included, with this copyright and no-warranty notice unaltered; and any additions, deletions, or changes to the original files must be clearly indicated in accompanying documentation.

(2) If only executable code is distributed, then the accompanying documentation must state that "this software is based in part on the work of the Independent JPEG Group".

(3) Permission for use of this software is granted only if the user accepts full responsibility for any undesirable consequences; the authors accept NO LIABILITY for damages of any kind. These conditions apply to any software derived from or based on the IJG code, not just to the unmodified library. If you use our work, you ought to acknowledge us.

Permission is NOT granted for the use of any IJG author's name or company name in advertising or publicity relating to this software or products derived from it. This software may be referred to only as "the Independent JPEG Group's software". We specifically permit and encourage the use of this software as the basis of commercial products, provided that all warranty or liability claims are assumed by the product vendor.

ansi2knr.c is included in this distribution by permission of L. Peter Deutsch, sole proprietor of its copyright holder, Aladdin Enterprises

© 2009-2011 Wind River Systems, Inc.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system, toolchain, board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

of Menlo Park, CA. ansi2knr.c is NOT covered by the above copyright and conditions, but instead by the usual distribution terms of the Free Software Foundation; principally, that you must include source code if you redistribute it. (See the file ansi2knr.c for full details.) However, since ansi2knr.c is not needed as part of any program generated from the IJG code, this does not limit you more than the foregoing paragraphs do.

The Unix configuration script "configure" was produced with GNU Autoconf. It is copyright by the Free Software Foundation but is freely distributable. The same holds for its supporting scripts (config.guess, config.sub, ltconfig, ltmain.sh). Another support script, install-sh, is copyright by M.I.T. but is also freely distributable.

It appears that the arithmetic coding option of the JPEG spec is covered by patents owned by IBM, AT&T, and Mitsubishi. Hence arithmetic coding cannot legally be used without obtaining one or more licenses. For this reason, support for arithmetic coding has been removed from the free JPEG software. (Since arithmetic coding provides only a marginal gain over the unpatented Huffman mode, it is unlikely that very many implementations will support it.) So far as we are aware, there are no patent restrictions on the remaining code.

The IJG distribution formerly included code to read and write GIF files. To avoid entanglement with the Unisys LZW patent, GIF reading support has been removed altogether, and the GIF writer has been simplified to produce "uncompressed GIFs". This technique does not use the LZW algorithm; the resulting GIF files are larger than usual, but are readable by all standard GIF decoders.

We are required to state that "The Graphics Interchange Format(c) is the Copyright property of CompuServe Incorporated. GIF(sm) is a Service Mark property of CompuServe Incorporated."

ansi2knr is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY. No author or distributor accepts responsibility to anyone for the consequences of using it or for whether it serves any particular purpose or works at all, unless he says so in writing. Refer to the GNU General Public License (the "GPL") for full details.

Everyone is granted permission to copy, modify and redistribute ansi2knr, but only under the conditions described in the GPL. A copy of this license is supposed to have been given to you along with ansi2knr so you can know your rights and responsibilities. It should be in a file named COPYLEFT. [In the IJG distribution, the GPL appears below, not in a separate file.] Among other things, the copyright notice and this notice must be preserved on all copies.

We explicitly state here what we believe is already implied by the GPL: if the ansi2knr program is distributed as a separate set of sources and a separate executable file which are aggregated on a storage medium together with another program, this in itself does not bring the other program under the GPL, nor does the mere fact that such a program or the procedures for constructing it invoke the ansi2knr executable bring any other part of the program under the GPL.

Here is the GNU GPL file COPYLEFT, referred to above. These terms do NOT apply to the JPEG software itself; see README

document version 2.60

Copyright (C) 1988 Richard M. Stallman

Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies of this license, but changing it is not allowed. You can also use this wording to make the terms for other programs.

The license agreements of most software companies keep you at the mercy of those companies. By contrast, our general public license is intended to give everyone the right to share Ghostscript. To make sure that you get the rights we want you to have, we need to make restrictions that forbid anyone to deny you these rights or to ask you to surrender the rights. Hence this license agreement.

Specifically, we want to make sure that you have the right to give away copies of Ghostscript, that you receive source code or else can get it if you want it, that you can change Ghostscript or use pieces of it in new free programs, and that you know you can do these things. To make sure that everyone has such rights, we have to forbid you to deprive anyone else of these rights. For example, if you distribute copies of Ghostscript, you must give the recipients all the rights that you have. You must make sure that they, too, receive or can get the source code. And you must tell them their rights. Also, for our own protection, we must make certain that everyone finds out that there is no warranty for Ghostscript. If Ghostscript is modified by someone else and passed on, we want its recipients to know that what they have is not what we distributed, so that any problems introduced by others will not reflect on our reputation.

Therefore we (Richard M. Stallman and the Free Software Foundation, Inc.) make the following terms which say what you must do to be allowed to distribute or change Ghostscript.

COPYING POLICIES

1. You may copy and distribute verbatim copies of Ghostscript source code as you receive it, in any medium, provided that you conspicuously and appropriately publish on each copy a valid copyright and license notice "Copyright (C) 1989 Aladdin Enterprises. All rights reserved. Distributed by Free Software Foundation, Inc." (or with whatever year is appropriate); keep intact the notices on all files that refer to this License Agreement and to the absence of any warranty; and give any other recipients of the Ghostscript program a copy of this License Agreement along with the program. You may charge a distribution fee for the physical act of transferring a copy.

2. You may modify your copy or copies of Ghostscript or any portion of it, and copy and distribute such modifications under the terms of Paragraph 1 above, provided that you also do the following:

- a) cause the modified files to carry prominent notices stating that you changed the files and the date of any change; and
- b) cause the whole of any work that you distribute or publish, that in whole or in part contains or is a derivative of Ghostscript or any part thereof, to be licensed at no charge to all third parties on terms identical to those contained in this License Agreement (except that you may choose to grant more extensive warranty protection to some or all third parties, at your option).
- c) You may charge a distribution fee for the physical act of transferring a copy, and you may at your option offer warranty protection in exchange for a fee.

Mere aggregation of another unrelated program with this program (or its derivative) on a volume of a storage or distribution medium does not bring the other program under the scope of these terms.

3. You may copy and distribute Ghostscript (or a portion or derivative of it, under Paragraph 2) in object code or executable form under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above provided that you also do one of the following:

- a) accompany it with the complete corresponding machine-readable source code, which must be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,
- b) accompany it with a written offer, valid for at least three years, to give any third party free (except for a nominal shipping charge) a complete machine-readable copy of the corresponding source code, to be distributed under the terms of Paragraphs 1 and 2 above; or,
- c) accompany it with the information you received as to where the corresponding source code may be obtained. (This alternative is allowed only for noncommercial distribution and only if you received the program in object code or executable form alone.)

For an executable file, complete source code means all the source code for all modules it contains; but, as a special exception, it need not include source code for modules which are standard libraries that accompany the operating system on which the executable file runs.

4. You may not copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer Ghostscript except as expressly provided under this License Agreement. Any attempt otherwise to copy, sublicense, distribute or transfer Ghostscript is void and your rights to use the program under this License agreement shall be automatically terminated. However, parties who have received computer software programs from you with this License Agreement will not have their licenses terminated so long as such parties remain in full compliance.

5. If you wish to incorporate parts of Ghostscript into other free programs whose distribution conditions are different, write to the Free Software Foundation at 675 Mass Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139. We have not yet worked out a simple rule that can be stated here, but we will often permit this. We will be guided by the two goals of preserving the free status of all derivatives of our free software and of promoting the sharing and reuse of software.

Your comments and suggestions about our licensing policies and our software are welcome! Please contact the Free Software Foundation, Inc., 675 Mass Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139, or call (617) 876-3296.

Miller, Sergio Monesi, Keith Owens, George Petrov, Greg Roelofs, Kai Uwe Rommel, Steve Salisbury, Dave Smith, Steven M. Schweda, Christian Spieler, Cosmin Truta, Antoine Verheijen, Paul von Behren, Rich Wales, Mike White.

This software is provided "as is," without warranty of any kind, express or implied. In no event shall Info-ZIP or its contributors be held liable for any direct, indirect, incidental, special or consequential damages arising out of the use of or inability to use this software. Permission is granted to anyone to use this software for any purpose, including commercial applications, and to alter it and redistribute it freely, subject to the above disclaimer and the following restrictions:

Redistributions of source code (in whole or in part) must retain the above copyright notice, definition, disclaimer, and this list of conditions.

Redistributions in binary form (compiled executables and libraries) must reproduce the above copyright notice, definition, disclaimer, and this list of conditions in documentation and/or other materials provided with the distribution. The sole exception to this condition is redistribution of a standard UnZipSFX binary (including SFXWiz) as part of a self-extracting archive; that is permitted without inclusion of this license, as long as the normal SFX banner has not been removed from the binary or disabled.

Altered versions-including, but not limited to, ports to new operating systems, existing ports with new graphical interfaces, versions with modified or added functionality, and dynamic, shared, or static library versions not from Info-ZIP-must be plainly marked as such and must not be misrepresented as being the original source or, if binaries, compiled from the original source. Such altered versions also must not be misrepresented as being Info-ZIP releases-including, but not limited to, labeling of the altered versions with the names "Info-ZIP" (or any variation thereof, including, but not limited to, different capitalizations), "Pocket UnZip," "WiZ" or "MacZip" without the explicit permission of Info-ZIP. Such altered versions are further prohibited from misrepresentative use of the Zip-Bugs or Info-ZIP e-mail addresses or the Info-ZIP URL(s), such as to imply Info-ZIP will provide support for the altered versions.

Info-ZIP retains the right to use the names "Info-ZIP," "Zip," "UnZip," "UnZipSFX," "WiZ," "Pocket UnZip," "Pocket Zip," and "MacZip" for its own source and binary releases.

From:
ghostscript-8.64-1.wrs.src/ghostscript-8.64-wrs/ghostscript-8.64/doc/Commprod.htm

This document sets forth the conditions under which Ghostscript may be distributed in a commercial context: under a written license from Artifex Software Inc., the copyright holder's exclusive commercial licensing partner, or under certain other very limited conditions. For other information, see the Ghostscript overview.

The use of the public-access "free" versions of Ghostscript The GNU General Public License (GPL) Ghostscript is a copyrighted work whose copyright is owned by Artifex Software, Inc. Some versions of Ghostscript are distributed freely under the name GPL Ghostscript or (for older versions) GNU Ghostscript; these versions are distributed with a license called the GNU General Public License (also known as the "GNU License", the "GPL", or "copyleft"), which allows gratis and commercial distribution under certain conditions, most particularly, source complete source disclosure.

Versions of Ghostscript between version 4.03 and 8.54 were also distributed under a more restrictive license disallowing commercial redistribution entirely. These versions were labelled "AFPL Ghostscript" or just "Ghostscript", and were governed by the Aladdin Free Public License. The full GPL is included under the name COPYING in the GPL Ghostscript fileset, and can also be obtained directly from the Free Software Foundation: Free Software Foundation, Inc. (FSF), 59 Temple Place, Suite 330, Boston, MA 02111-1307, +1-617-542-5942 telephone, +1-617-542-2652 fax (including Japan): gnu@gnu.org, <http://www.gnu.org/>

The GPL gotten directly from the FSF or the contents of the COPYING file are authoritative, but for those unfamiliar with the GPL, we now summarize its provisions.

1. Anyone may copy and distribute GPL Ghostscript (both source and object code), but they must distribute the source code as well as the object code (or, if they distribute only the object code, they must include an offer in writing to provide the source code at no more than reproduction cost), keep all copyright and other notices, and include the

GPL with the copies. (Note that this allows anyone receiving such a copy to distribute it freely as well.)

2. Anyone may modify GPL Ghostscript, but the provisions of (1) apply to modified or derived works as well.

Provision (2) effectively prevents the development of proprietary commercial products that incorporate GPL Ghostscript without a commercial license as a part, since these are "derived works" in the legal sense.

IF YOUR ENTIRE APPLICATION IS LICENSED TO THE PUBLIC UNDER EITHER THE AFPL OR THE GNU GPL, YOU CAN DISTRIBUTE AFPL GHOSTSCRIPT OR GNU GHOSTSCRIPT, RESPECTIVELY, WITH YOUR APPLICATION WITHOUT A COMMERCIAL LICENSE . . .

If your application, including all of its source code, is licensed to the public under the GNU GPL, you are authorized to ship GPL Ghostscript with your application under the terms of those license agreements. You do not need a commercial license from Artifex. The terms of the GNU GPL include the requirement that your application be licensed as a whole at no charge to all third parties. Moreover, the entire application must be licensed to the public under the GNU GPL or AFPL respectively.

IF YOUR APPLICATION IS NOT LICENSED TO THE PUBLIC UNDER THE GNU GPL AND YOU PLAN TO DISTRIBUTE GHOSTSCRIPT SOFTWARE. . .

If your application (including its source code) is not licensed to the public under the GNU GPL, you are not authorized to ship GPL Ghostscript with your application under the terms of the GNU GPL if any one of the following is true:

your application contains a copy of some or all of GPL Ghostscript;
your application is derived from, is based on, or constitutes a revision of some or all of GPL or Ghostscript;
your application includes one or more functions that use some or all of GPL or Ghostscript.

These criteria apply to your application as a whole. Even if only one section of your application satisfies one of these criteria, you are not authorized to ship GPL Ghostscript with your application unless your application, including all of its source code, is licensed to the public under the GNU GPL.

If your application (including its source code) is NOT licensed to the public under the GNU GPL and you intend to distribute Ghostscript (either internally or externally) for use with and usable by your application, you MUST first obtain a commercial license from Artifex.

Examples of Distribution

Some examples of distribution requiring a commercial license include:

1. Distributing Ghostscript (or any component thereof) within your non-GNU GPL application.
2. Distributing Ghostscript on the same media with your non-GNU GPL application for use with and by your application.
3. Distributing Ghostscript embedded within hardware.

Questions have arisen at times in particular cases regarding provision (3) as to whether GPL Ghostscript is "aggregated" with other parts of a commercial product, or whether the product has become a "derived work." Normally, combining GPL Ghostscript with another piece of software creates a "derived work"; we consider GPL Ghostscript to be "aggregated" with another piece of software, which we will refer to as "the application", only if all of the following conditions are met:

The code and documentation for GPL Ghostscript are physically separated from the code and documentation for the application. For electronic form, it is both necessary and sufficient to put the GNU Ghostscript code and documentation in their own directory tree(s).

GPL Ghostscript, as delivered with the application, is usable independently of the application. More precisely, if a user deletes from the computer system all files delivered with the application except those in the GPL Ghostscript directories, the user will still be able to use GPL Ghostscript as described in GPL Ghostscript's documentation. Among other things, this requires that GPL Ghostscript not call any routines in the application, and not require any data or other files supplied as part of the application.

The application calls GPL Ghostscript in a way that allows an ordinary user to substitute another program for GPL Ghostscript. (Typically this requires use of a shell script or batch file, or a system call like "exec".) More precisely, if the user deletes from the computer system all the files in the GPL Ghostscript directories, and replaces the GPL Ghostscript executable with another program with the same name and conforming to the same documentation, the application will continue to work with it.

One implication of this is that the GPL Ghostscript documentation must specify all properties of GPL Ghostscript on which the application relies; for example, if GPL Ghostscript has been modified by the addition of command line switches or language elements such as new operators, the documentation must describe any such additions that the application uses. The conditions of the GNU GPL are met with respect to GPL Ghostscript, including the requirement for propagation of the GPL and the requirement for delivering (or an offer to deliver) source code.

Regarding this last point, the GPL clearly intends that if the distributor only offers to provide the GPL Ghostscript source code (as opposed to actually distributing the source code with every copy of the application), then they must deliver the source code in a timely way to anyone requesting it.

The GPL makes it clear that if someone receives GPL Ghostscript only in its GPL-licensed form, they only have a right to distribute it if they comply with the GPL. Artifex Software, Inc., as the copyright holder, takes this requirement very seriously, and will, if necessary, take legal action to ensure that anyone distributing GPL Ghostscript with the GPL complies with the conditions set forth above.

document version 2.60

This file, unlike the rest of Ghostscript, consists entirely of information copied from public sources. It therefore is not covered by the Ghostscript copyright or license: it is in the public domain. For other information, see the Ghostscript overview. You can also read about Ghostscript fonts in general.

This is part 1 of five parts of the first Usenet distribution of the Hershey Fonts. See the README file for more details.

Peter Holzmann, Octopus Enterprises
USPS: 19611 La Mar Court, Cupertino, CA 95014
UUCP: {hplabs!hpd!sd,pyramid}!octopus!pete
Phone: 408/996-7746

This distribution is made possible through the collective encouragement of the Usenet Font Consortium, a mailing list that sprang to life to get this accomplished and that will now most likely disappear into the mists of time... Thanks are especially due to Jim Hurt, who provided the packed font data for the distribution, along with a lot of other help.

This file describes the Hershey Fonts in general, along with a description of the other files in this distribution and a simple re-distribution restriction.

USE RESTRICTION:

This distribution of the Hershey Fonts may be used by anyone for any purpose, commercial or otherwise, providing that:

1. The following acknowledgements must be distributed with the font data: The Hershey Fonts were originally created by Dr. A. V. Hershey while working at the U. S. National Bureau of Standards. The format of the Font data in this distribution was originally created by James Hurt, Cognition, Inc. 900 Technology Park Drive, Billerica, MA 01821 (mit-eddie!ci-dandelion!hurt)

2. The font data in this distribution may be converted into any other format EXCEPT the format distributed by the U.S. NTIS (which organization holds the rights to the distribution and use of the font data in that particular format). Not that anybody would really want to use their format... each point is described in eight bytes as "xxx yyy:", where xxx and yyy are the coordinate values as ASCII numbers.

PLEASE be reassured: The legal implications of NTIS' attempt to control a particular form of the Hershey Fonts are troubling. HOWEVER: We have been endlessly and repeatedly assured by NTIS that they do not care what we do with our version of the font data, they do not want to know about it, they understand that we are distributing this information all over the world, etc etc etc... but because it isn't in their exact distribution format, they just don't care!!! So go ahead and use the data with a clear conscience! (If you feel bad about it, take a smaller deduction for something on your taxes next week...)

This driver produces plane-separated, run-length-encoded, 24-bit RGB images suitable for a PostScript Level 2 printer. LZW compression would be better, but Unisys' claim to own the compression algorithm and their demand for licensing and payment even for freely distributed software rule this out.

This is an independent implementation of the symmetric block cipher commonly known as 'arcfour' based on Bruce Schneier's description of the algorithm in Applied Cryptography. Arcfour is believed to be functionally equivalent to the RC4(tm) cipher mentioned in the PDF specification. (RC4 is a registered trademark of RSA Data Security, Inc.)

The following macro is used to disable algorithms, which could cause Apple's patent infringement.

In response to patent-related actions by Unisys and CompuServe, removes the GIF driver.

From:
ghostscript-8.64-1.wrs.src/ghostscript-8.64-wrs/ghostscript-8.64/doc/Ps2pdf.htm

Because of Unisys's threats regarding the Welch patent, ps2pdf does not actually use LZW compression: instead, it treats all requests for LZW compression as calling for Flate compression. Concomitantly, UseFlateCompression is treated as always on, and the value of this parameter is ignored as with note 0. Now that the patent has expired, we could change this should it become worthwhile.

From:
ghostscript-8.64-1.wrs.src/ghostscript-8.64-wrs/ghostscript-8.64/peg/change.log

To avoid the Unisys LZW patent, djpeg's GIF output capability has been changed to produce "uncompressed GIFs", and cjpeg's GIF input capability has been removed altogether. We're not happy about it either, but there seems to be no good alternative.

Description:	Git is a fast, scalable, distributed revision control system with an unusually rich command set that provides both high-level operations and full access to internals. Git is an Open Source project covered by the GNU General Public License. Git is a free distributed revision control, or software source code management project with an emphasis on being fast. Git was initially designed and document version 2.60 developed by Linus Torvalds for Linux kernel development. Every Git working directory is a full-fledged repository with complete history and full revision tracking capabilities, not dependent on network access or a central server.

Note that the only valid version of the GPL as far as this project is concerned is _this_ particular version of the license (ie v2, not v2.2 or v3.x or whatever), unless explicitly otherwise stated.

HOWEVER, in order to allow a migration to GPLv3 if that seems like a good idea, I also ask that people involved with the project make their preferences known. In particular, if you trust me to make that decision, you might note so in your copyright message, ie something like: "This file is licensed under the GPL v2, or a later version at the discretion of Linus" might avoid issues. But we can also just decide to synchronize and contact all copyright holders on record if/when the occasion arises. - Linus Torvalds

This MD5 digest computation is based on the equivalent code written by Colin Plumb. It came with this notice:

This code implements the MD5 message-digest algorithm. The algorithm is due to Ron Rivest. This code was written by Colin Plumb in 1993, no copyright is claimed. This code is in the public domain; do with it what you wish.

Equivalent code is available from RSA Data Security, Inc. This code has been tested against that, and is equivalent, except that you don't need to include two pages of legalese with every copy.

The following implementation comes from D-Bus dbus-sha.c. I've changed it to use GLib types and to work more like the MD5 implementation above. I left the comments to have an history of this code. -- Emmanuele Bassi, ebassi@gnome.org

The following comments have the history of where this code comes from. I actually copied it from GNet in GNOME CVS. - hp@redhat.com

SHA: NIST's Secure Hash Algorithm
Based on SHA code originally posted to sci.crypt by Peter Gutmann in message <30ajo5$oe8@ccu2.auckland.ac.nz>. Modified to test for endianness on creation of SHA objects by AMK. Also, the original specification of SHA was found to have a weakness by NSA/NIST. This code implements the fixed version of SHA.

Here's the first paragraph of Peter Gutmann's posting:
The following is my SHA (FIPS 180) code updated to allow use of the "fixed" SHA, thanks to Jim Gillogly and an anonymous contributor for the information on what's changed in the new version. The fix is a simple change which involves adding a single rotate in the initial expansion function. It is unknown whether this is an optimal solution to the problem which was discovered in the SHA or whether it's simply a bandaid which fixes the problem with a minimum of effort (for example the reengineering of a great many Capstone chips).

adapted from the SHA256 implementation in gsk/src/hash/gskhash.c.

PCRE LICENCE - PCRE is a library of functions to support regular expressions whose syntax and semantics are as close as possible to those of the Perl 5 language.

In practice, this means that if you use PCRE in software that you distribute to others, commercially or otherwise, you must put a sentence like this Regular expression support is provided by the PCRE library package, which is open source software, written by Philip Hazel, and copyright by the University of Cambridge, England. somewhere reasonably visible in your documentation and in any relevant files or online help data or similar.

A reference to the ftp site for the source, that is, to <ftp://ftp.csx.cam.ac.uk/pub/software/programming/pcre/> should also be given in the documentation. However, this condition is not intended to apply to whole chains of software. If package A includes PCRE, it must acknowledge it, but if package B is software that includes package A, the condition is not imposed on package B (unless it uses PCRE independently).

The algorithm for adding nodes is taken from one of the many "Algorithms" books by Robert Sedgewick, although the implementation differs. The algorithm for deleting nodes can probably be found in a book named "Introduction to Algorithms" by Cormen/Leiserson/Rivest. At least that's the book that my professor took most algorithms from during the "Data Structures" course... Totally public domain.

Description:	This is the glibc ports repository, an add-on for the GNU C Library (glibc). It contains code that is not maintained in the official glibc source tree. This includes working ports to GNU/Linux on some machine architectures that are not maintained in the official glibc source tree. It also includes some code once used by old libc ports now defunct, which has been abandoned but may be useful for some future porter to examine. It may also include some optimized functions tailored for specific CPU implementations of an architecture, to be selected using --with-cpu.

History and Most Recent Version of the SGI Free Software License B SGI has released SGI Free Software License "B" version 2.0. The license is available in both PDF and Microsoft Word formats.

History - Version 2.0

Version 1.1 of the FreeB license was replaced by version 2.0, which mirrors the well-known X11 license. Under the terms of version 1.1, "once Covered Code has been published under a particular version of the License, Recipient may, for the duration of the License, continue to use it under the terms of that version, or choose to use such Covered Code under the terms of any subsequent version published by SGI." Other than the added option to refer to the License's website, the terms of the version 2.0 License are identical to the terms of the X11 license. SGI decided to revise, rather than replace, the FreeB License as a matter of convenience. By revising the Free License, users will not need to update any files.

Version 1.1

Version 1.0 of the FreeB license included one term regarding compliance with defined APIs which posed a problem for some open source developers. SGI revised the license in response to those concerns and issued a joint statement with developers outside SGI. This satisfied both SGI's needs and those of outside developers working with code covered by the FreeB license.

Version 1.0

The version 1.0 license underwent one minor change in section 8 (defining "Modifications") on the morning that SGI released it publicly, due to internal miscommunication. The originally posted version of the license is available for reference purposes here.

Description: GNU MP is a library for arbitrary precision arithmetic, operating on signed integers, rational numbers, and floating point numbers. It has a rich set of functions, and the functions have a regular interface. GNU MP is designed to be as fast as possible, both for small operands and huge operands. The speed is achieved by using fullwords as the basic arithmetic type, by using fast algorithms, with carefully optimized assembly code for the most common inner loops for lots of CPUs, and by a general emphasis on speed (instead of simplicity or elegance). GNU MP is believed to be faster than any other similar library. Its advantage increases with operand sizes for certain operations, since GNU MP in many cases has asymptotically faster algorithms.

THE GNU MP LIBRARY - GNU MP is a library for arbitrary precision arithmetic, operating on signed integers, rational numbers, and floating point numbers. It has a rich set of functions, and the functions have a regular interface. GNU MP is designed to be as fast as possible, both for small operands and huge operands. The speed is achieved by using fullwords as the basic arithmetic type, by using fast algorithms, with carefully optimized assembly code for the most common inner loops for lots of CPUs, and by a general emphasis on speed (instead of simplicity or elegance). GNU MP is believed to be faster than any other similar library. Its advantage increases with operand sizes for certain operations, since GNU MP in many cases has asymptotically faster algorithms.

GNU MP is free software and may be freely copied on the terms contained in the files COPYING.LIB and COPYING (most of GNU MP is under the former, some under the latter).

The Gnome Documentation Utilities is a collection of programs and data files to help you build, maintain, and distribute documentation. This package is entirely free software; however, not all components of the package are under the same free software license.

The GNU General Public License and the GNU Lesser General Public License are used for particular components of this package, depending on need. You should have received a copy of both licenses with this package; see COPYING.GPL and COPYING.LGPL. If you did not receive these files, write to the Free Software Foundation, Inc., 59 Temple Place - Suite 330, Boston, MA 02111-1307

This document attempts to provide a brief overview of the programs in this package and their licensing terms.

xml2po
The xml2po program is used to convert between PO files and XML documents. Within gnome-doc-utils, it is used primarily to translate documentation written in the DocBook format. It was written by Danilo Segan.

xml2po is released under the terms of the GNU GPL. PO and XML files output by xml2po are unaffected by the GPL; you are free to license them however you see fit.

gnome-doc-prepare
The gnome-doc-prepare script is used to initialize your source tree for using the gnome-doc-utils build utilities. It can also be used to create a template document and the necessary supporting files and folders. It was written by Danilo Segan.

gnome-doc-prepare is released under the terms of the GNU GPL. The build files output by gnome-doc-prepare are unaffected by the GPL; you are free to distribute them however you see fit. The template files are separate entities from gnome-doc-prepare. They should specify their own terms of distribution. In many cases, they will be simply stubs, and will have no restrictions on modification or redistribution.

As a special exception to the GNU General Public License, if you distribute gnome-doc-prepare as part of a program that contains a configuration script generated by Autoconf, you may include gnome-doc-prepare under the same distribution terms that you use for the rest of that program.

This information is provided for convenience only, to provide a general overview of our base product offering in a user-friendly format. It does not contain information for the build system, toolchain, board support packages or device drivers. This document is provided "as is" without any warranty whatsoever. This documentation may not be referenced or relied upon for its accuracy or comprehensiveness, or to determine legal obligations with respect to open source code contained in our products. Such determinations should be based upon recipient's independent legal analysis and by reference to the notices and licenses contained within the open source code itself. Wind River may change the contents of this document at any time at its sole discretion, and Wind River shall have no liability whatsoever arising from recipient's use of this information.

WIND RIVER CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. Recipient of the following materials shall protect Discloser's Confidential Information using the same degree of care, but no less than reasonable care, to prevent the unauthorized use or dissemination of the Confidential Information.

gnome-doc-utils.make
The gnome-doc-utils.make make script can be included into your Makefiles to build, verify, and install your documentation. It was written by Shaun McCance.

gnome-doc-utils.make is released under the terms of the GNU GPL. Most files output by gnome-doc-utils.make are actually output using one of the other tools in this package, or using a commonly-available tool from another package. Thus, the files output by this script are not affected by the GPL. They may, however, be affected by the terms of the individual programs that are being invoked.

We make every effort to avoid calling programs that will introduce restrictions on redistribution of your package; however, we can not guarantee that no such restrictions exist for files generated by tools outside this package.

As a special exception to the GNU General Public License, if you distribute gnome-doc-utils.make as part of a program that contains a configuration script generated by Autoconf, you may include gnome-doc-utils.make under the same distribution terms that you use for the rest of that program.

XSLT
This package contains various XSLT files for transforming DocBook and other formats. They were written primarily by Shaun McCance.

The XSLT files are released under the terms of the GNU LGPL. You may build customizations from these stylesheets using their public documented interfaces, using either `xsl:import` or `xsl:include`, with no restrictions on your customized stylesheets. You may also invoke the stylesheets freely, either with a simple XSLT processor such as `xsltproc`, or using an XSLT processing library within your program. The use of these stylesheets has no bearing on the licensing terms of the XSLT processing program you use.

The files output by the stylesheets are not affected by the terms of the LGPL. In particular, some of the stylesheets output program files rather than simple data files. The generated program files are also not affected by the LGPL. You can redistribute all generated files as you see fit.

Sometimes it is necessary to include small portions of the stylesheets within your source distribution to make building simpler for end users and packagers. As a special exception to the GNU General Public License, if you distribute the stylesheets as part of a program that contains a configuration script generated by Autoconf, you may include those stylesheets under the same distribution terms that you use for the rest of that program.

Images
This package contains a number of images that are used in the formatted output. They were created primarily by Josef Vybáral. These images are licensed under the terms of the GNU GPL.

As a special exception to the GNU General Public License, if you distribute copies of your document formatted by the tools in this package, you may redistribute unmodified copies of any images used or referenced in that formatted copy without restriction.

This program is free software, but that doesn't mean you should use it. It's a hackish bit of awk and XSLT to do inline XSLT documentation with a simple syntax in comments. I had originally tried to make a public inline documentation system for XSLT using embedded XML, but it just got very cumbersome. XSLT should have been designed from the ground up with an inline documentation format.

None of the existing inline documentation tools (gtk-doc, doxygen, etc.) really work well for XSLT, so I rolled my own simple comment-based tool. This tool is sufficient for producing the documentation I need, but I just don't have the time or inclination to make a robust system suitable for public use.

You are, of course, free to use any of this. If you do proliferate this hack, it is requested (though not required, that would be non-free) that you atone for your actions. A good atonement would be contributing to free software.

gnome-keyring 2.32.1

Software:	gnome-keyring
Version:	2.32.1
File or Package:	gnome-keyring-2.32.1.tar.bz2
OSI Licenses:	GPLv2, GPLv2+, GPLv2+ w/exception, LGPLv2, LGPLv2+, LGPLv2.1+, MIT/X11, Academic Free v2.1, Mozilla Public (MPL) v1.1, Academic, Public Domain
Other Licenses:
URL:	http://ftp.gnome.org/pub/GNOME/sources/gnome-keyring/2.32/gnome-keyring-2.32.1.tar.bz2
Group:	User Space Libraries / System Environment/Libraries
Description:	gnome-keyring is a program that keep password and other secrets for users. It is run as a daemon in the session, similar to ssh-agent, and other applications locate it via an environment variable or a dbus. The program can manage several keyrings, each with its own master password, and there is also a session keyring which is never stored to disk, but forgotten when the session ends. The library libgnome-keyring is used by applications to integrate with the gnome document version 2.60 keyring system. GNOME Keyring is a place where passwords (and soon encryption keys) for a user are stored in an encrypted file. The user enters a global password when first accessed. GNOME keyring has a password store which GNOME applications can access to store and find passwords and other sensitive data.

Some code is based on previous code in clock-location.c and on code from tz.c (shipped with version < 2.22.0). Those files were under the same license, with those authors and copyrights:

clock-location.c:

No header, but most of the work was done (AFAIK) by

Federico Mena Quintero <federico@novell.com>

Matthias Clasen <mclasen@redhat.com>

tz.c:

Copyright (C) 2000-2001 Ximian, Inc.

Copyright (C) 2004 Sun Microsystems, Inc.

Authors: Hans Petter Jansson <hpj@ximian.com>

additional functions by Erwann Chenede <erwann.chenede@sun.com>

reworked by Vincent Untz <vuntz@gnome.org>

Largely based on Michael Fulbright's work on Anaconda.

Tilladelse er givet til at kopiere, distribuere og/eller ændre dette dokument under betingelserne i GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), version 1.1 eller enhver senere version udgivet af Free Software Foundation; uden invariante afsnit, forsidetekster, samt bagsidetekster. Du kan se en kopi af GFDL her Link eller i filen COPYING-DOCS som distribueres sammen med denne manual.

Denne manual er en del af den samling af GNOME-manualer som udgives under GFDL. Hvis du ønsker at distribuere denne manuel adskilt fra samlingen, kan du gøre dette ved at tilføje en kopi af licensen til manualen, som beskrevet i afsnit 6 af licensen.

En stor del af de navne som anvendes af firmaer til at identificere deres produkter og tjenester hævdes som værende varemærker. Hvor disse navne fremgår i en hvilken som helst GNOME-dokumentation, og medlemmerne af GNOME-dokumentationsprojektet er gjort opmærksom på disse varemærker, så er disse navne vist med store bogstaver eller stort begyndelsesbogstav.

Baimena ematen da dokumentu hau kopia, banatu eta/edo aldatzeko Free Software Foundation-ek argitaratutako GNU Dokumentazio Librearen Lizenziaren (GFDL) 1.1. bertsioan edo berriago batean ezarritako baldintzak betetzen badira; Atal Aldaezinik, Aurreko azaleko testurik eta Atzeko azaleko testurik gabe. GFDL lizenziaren kopia Esteka honetan edo eskuliburu honekin batera ematen den COPYING-DOCS fitxategian aurkituko duzu.

Eskuliburu hau GFDL lizenziarekin banatzen diren GNOME dokumentuen bildumakoa da. Eskuliburu hau bildumatik bereizita banatu nahi baduzu, bana dezakezu, baina dokumentuari lizenziaren kopia bat gehituta, lizentzia bertan 6. atalean azaltzen den bezala.

Enpresek euren produktu eta zerbitzuak bereizteko erabiltzen dituzten izen asko marka erregistratu moduan hartu behar dira. Izen horiek GNOMEren edozein agiritan agertzen direnean, eta GNOMEren Dokumentazio Proiektuko kideak marka komertzialak direla konturatu badira, orduan izen horiek maiuskulaz idatzita egongo dira, osorik edo hasierako letra maiuskulaz jarrita.

Дозвољено умножавање, ширење, вршење измена овог документа под условима Гну-ове Слободне Документационе Дозволе (ГСДД), верзије 1.1 или било које накнадне верзије без непромењивих одељака, текста на насловној и последњој страни, а коју је објавила Задужбина Слободног Софтвера. Примерак ГСДД-е можете пронаћи на овој Адреси или у датотеци COPYING-DOCS која је приложена уз ово упутство.

Ово упутство је део скупа Гном докумената објављених под GFDL. Уколико желите да расподељујете ово упутство одвојено од скупа, то можете урадити додавањем примерка лиценце документу, како је описано у одељку 6 саме лиценце.

Многи називи које компаније користе у циљу препознатљивости својих производа и услуга представљају робне марке. Када(уколико) се такви називи појављују(спомињу) у било којем Гном документу, а чланови Гномовог документационог пројекта имају сазнања о томе, тада су називи исписани великим словима или са великим почетним словима.
